Mounties 'Disciplined Automatons' Wilson Wins

By ANDRE OUIMET

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — Recent arrests and dismissals of RCMP veterans are only the "tip of the iceberg," and more can be expected in the near future because of a basic flaw in police training, a government source admitted Thursday.

The training over-emphasizes discipline at the expense of personal judgment, he explained.

The RCMP was so concerned about its public image for so many years that it created disciplined robots without bothering to do anything about their brains," he claimed.

Thus the RCMP ended up with a number of well-disciplined automatons who gradually lost all personal judgment and simply could not cope when faced with a moral dilemma outside their day-to-day duties.

One top-level officer once boasted that he could order a constable to jump out a third-floor window and be certain the order would be instantly obeyed, and that was his conception of how the force

Officers had been brainwashed to such an extent that they were incapable of thinking clearly for themselves whenever they began to question their role in society and it was not surprising that they could indulge in criminal activity since they had lost all sense of right and wrong.

Closely associated with the force for a number of years, he claimed that recent scandals were predictable over three years ago.

Robert Samson, a nine-year

veteran of the RCMP, was arrested last summer in connection with the bombing of a grocery store executive's home in Montreal and an inquiry into the incident established underworld connections between Samson and some of his friends.

More recently, an RCMP constable was arrested on Montreal's South Shore while apparently filling an RCMP truck with stolen merchandise in a St. Hubert lumber yard.

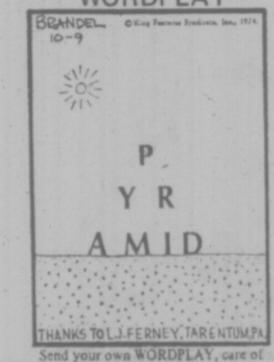

Fake licence plates had been affixed to the RCMP truck, but no charges have yet been laid pending the results of an investigation.

And there was an uproar here when two RCMP veterans who had been summarily dismissed decided not to protest their firing because doing so would have apparently opened a can of worms contrary to the public interest.

There was little hope of reform at the moment, the source continued, because the current solicitor-general, Warren Allmand, spent most of his energies on prison reform leaving the force "pretty well on its own."

U.S. Coal Strike 'Forced'

WASHINGTON — The president of the United Mine Workers charged Thursday that his union is being forced toward a U.S.-wide strike five weeks from now by the refusal of the industry to bargain in good faith.

Unless the industry backs off from its present stance, UMW president Arnold Miller said at a press conference, "I must reluctantly report to the American people that a nationwide coal strike is likely to occur on Nov. 12."

He accused the industry of wanting to force a strike, "then demand governmental intervention" to undermine the union's bargaining power.

HATFIELD NAMES DAY AMID ROSY OMENS

FREDERICTON (CP) — Hard on the heels of two Progressive Conservative by-election victories, Premier Richard Hatfield today called a New Brunswick election for Monday, Nov. 18.

The premier's announcement comes nearly four years after his Conservative government won office by defeating the former administration of Premier Louis J. Robichaud.

The economic situation appears likely to be the major issue in the campaign.

Groves said Plummer Bay Sawmill has only 25 employees making chips instead of 150 at full production and Sooke Forest Products which had employed 375, has its graveyard shift off and the work force down to 250 "and that could be cut back at the end of the month."

Victoria Plywood vice-president C. C. Mearns said he doesn't know how long the mill will be closed.

"Right now the industry picture doesn't look good until spring," he said.

He blamed the closure on a poor market for plywood, adding life situation has been aggravated by United States plywood makers flooding the Canadian market with low-priced goods.

Groves also referred to "cheap plywood coming in from the U.S. which just compounds the thing."

B.C. Forest Products in Victoria laid off 79 of its plywood workers in September to reduce production.

Roy Whittle vice-president, said the current Victoria sawmill layoff, together with 20 at Youbou and 51 on the mainland, brings the total to date for the company to 336.

He said lumber markets are continuing to deteriorate to a point at which market prices are well below cost of manufacture and with the mills sustaining heavy financial losses, "these further curtailments cannot be avoided."

Alternative employment will be offered where available "but this is limited because of the current situation affecting the forest industry," he said.

Industry layoffs in B.C. are close to 12,000 and the IWA said just over a quarter of its 115,000 members in Canada and the United States have been laid off.

SHOTS MISS KISSINGER

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Henry Kissinger narrowly escaped injury today when an Israeli-made submachine gun fell from a truck inside his plane and discharged two shots wounding Secret Service agent Walter Bothe.

Kissinger, 20 feet away when the incident occurred, joked about it with Bothe and newsmen aboard the plane. Bothe remained with the party.

Plus-Minus Sewage Eyed

There is a move afoot in the Capital Region to force provincial government approval of the controversial "plus-minus" system to handle sewage.

Charles Loughridge, chairman of the Bilton Improvement District, has set up a seminar for Thursday in the Luxton Hall on the use of carbon coal to filter raw sewage. The meeting starts at 7 p.m.

Loughridge claims the provincial government was handed a report some time ago which favors the system.

"But they are sitting on it and won't release it to the public. I've read it and it favors the coal filtering plan."

"Somehow the government should be forced to release it," adds Loughridge.

He says he plans to defy the province and regional health officials by installing the system at his property on Happy Valley Road.

At the seminar will be Prof. Lionel Coulthard who wrote the report favoring carbon coal; Cy Jones, the man who patented the plus-minus system; Ed Chow, an engineer working with Jones; and Ron Tavis, a teacher of environmental studies at Douglas College.

Loughridge says he has invited the mayors of the four core municipalities and the MLAs in the area. The public is invited.

Gray Rips Grits Over Inflation

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Former Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray criticized his own party in the Commons Thursday for failing to take speedy action to protect consumers from the effects of inflation.

During his first speech since he was removed from Cabinet in August, Gray urged the government to bring in before Christmas legislation to promote competition and deal with profiteering as measures to keep prices down.

He also accused the government of a serious omission from the Throne Speech in not stating that the Food Prices Review Board may make recommendations to combat rising prices.

• Criticized indirectly his successor, Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, for not making any statement about recently-announced bread price increases.

• Accused the government with Agriculture Minister Gene Whelan sitting glumly a few desks away of placing an undue burden on low income families by its decision to phase out the five-cent-a-quart milk subsidy.

• Said that Whelan's announcement last week that consumers would be placed on the Farm Products Marketing Council, is meaningless unless consumers are placed on the more powerful Egg Marketing Agency and similar bodies.

It was the toughest speech in years for the quiet-spoken, solemn MP from Windsor West.

Opposition members applauded vigorously as Gray spoke. Four cabinet ministers, including Whelan, were conspicuously ignored, most of Gray's remarks.

The government is being weak-kneed in the face of business pressures and is delaying enactment of long-promised measures "to help competitive pressures to work more actively against rising prices in our economy."

Gray obviously wanted exposure of his strong remarks and had a notice of his intent to speak sent to the Press Gallery.

He said some things were "factual," Whelan said.

The agriculture minister stated that the Food Prices Review Board can still make recommendations, even though the Throne Speech didn't mention this function.

The speech dealt only with the board's role of reporting on price trends and analyzing reasons for price increases.

Whelan also said the government is looking at the legal technicalities of placing consumers on the Canadian Egg Marketing Board and other national marketing boards.

But he observed that the removal of the milk price subsidy was first discussed when Gray was still in cabinet.

A two-acre vacation lot on Pender Island will be raffled off by the Vancouver Island Housing Association for the Physically Disabled to raise money for the group's planned board residence in Saanich.

STAMP MARKS POSTAL UNION ANNIVERSARY

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office issued two stamps Wednesday to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Universal Postal Union, the world's oldest inter-governmental organization.

The eight-cent and 15-cent stamps issued depict the symbol of the UPU with a globe and figures representing the races of man.

Most of the 150 members of the union issued a special stamp on the anniversary, G. M. Sinclair, assistant deputy postmaster-general said. The union was set up to help make it easier to move mail from one country to another.

RESCUE CHOPPER SAVES THREE

An Armed Forces rescue helicopter plucked three Vancouver men off a desolate beach near River's Inlet Thursday where they had been stranded after their 16-foot boat was holed, caught fire and burned to the waterline.

The pilot of an Alert Bay Air Services float plane on a routine flight between Ocean Falls and Alert Bay spotted the men and notified the Pacific Rescue Centre in Victoria.

None of the men, believed to be on a fishing trip, were injured.

the weather

Conditions were quite variable throughout the province overnight in advance of an intense and elongated Pacific system lying in the eastern Pacific. Cloud has moved into the north coast while the central interior remains clear with temperatures below freezing. Elsewhere cloud has been predominant while most regions have reported some fog. The Pacific disturbance will continue slowly eastward with the main effect from the north coast today and tonight. Otherwise as the system weakens on moving through the coast and inland some rain can be expected into the south coast and also in the central interior. Temperatures will remain in much the same regime.

2 Sadists Bilk Elderly Woman

Two young women swindled a 72-year-old James Bay woman out of most of her meager savings Wednesday and then telephoned her nine hours later and laughed hysterically over how they had bilked her.

Even veteran Victoria police detective Lorne Shandley, who has dealt with the whole gamut of human behavior, was visibly disturbed.

He called the phone call a "sadistic twist."

In an interview Thursday he said he wanted to bring the case to public attention to prevent any recurrence.

Police believe the same two women, together with a black man, swindled between $12,000 and $13,000 from 17 elderly women in Vancouver this summer.

The method of operation is a variant of an age-old confidence game that preys on the gullibility of people who are duped into believing a get-rich-quick scheme.

Shandley said the elderly woman, whose name he would not release, had been grocery shopping and was about to enter her apartment at 11 a.m. Wednesday when she was approached by a well-dressed woman described as 24 or 25, 5'4", slight, with dark short cut hair.

"Look what I found on Blanshard earlier today," the young woman said producing a brown envelope on which was written "District 15 - Important Papers. Do not mail."

At that moment a second woman arrived on the scene, about the same age and build as the first although with coarser features and brown hair.

"Let's open the envelope and see what it's all about," she suggested. She took the package, broke the seal and found a stack of money inside.

"You had better turn it over to the police," the elderly woman said.

But the second woman countered: "No way the police will just keep it. I'm not turning it over."

The pair then helped the woman carry her groceries into her apartment. They introduced themselves as Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. Anderson.

The first woman said she was a legal secretary "bonded for $50,000 by Lloyd's of London" and that if the other two would accompany her she would take the envelope to her boss "who will know what to do with it."

The three drove off in a small brown car and parked on Fort near Quadra.

The "secretary" got out leaving the other two behind and returned a short time later.

She said her boss had counted the money and found it totalled $30,000, all in $50 and $100 bills.

They had also found a note in the package which stated the money represented winnings at a race track and was to be deposited in a Swiss bank account.

She said her boss had "connections" with the income tax department and had been advised all the tax people wanted was 10 per cent of the money and the rest could be kept by the finders.

All Out of Same Pocket

Victoria city council has sensibly decided to pay its $68,000 share of Human Resources Minister Norman Levi's $103 million budget overrun, although Mayor Peter Pollen said he'd like to "write an obscenity" on the cheque. Its decision followed Esquimalt's lead earlier in the week to cough up an extra $19,400 as its part.

But Saanich and Oak Bay councils are balking at paying the extra money, which represents their 10 per cent share of social assistance allowances paid out in their municipalities. In part, it seems, to score a few political points off the hapless minister.

Ald. Les Passmore of Saanich noted that his municipality always paid up in the past, even in the 1970-71 fiscal year when — under Social Credit — there was a 36 per cent under-estimation of the department's budget, almost identical with Levi's mistake. He also suggested that this time around politics was entering into the matter.

The suggestion of Mayor Ed Lum — a well-known member of the political party which forms the official opposition in British Columbia — that Saanich pay its originally-estimated welfare bill and let the province take it to court for the rest oddly never surfaced in previous years.

At any rate, such a case could conceivably spend a long, long time in the courts with a bill for legal costs much higher than the sum at stake. Saanich may not have much of a legal leg to stand on either — it apparently paid without a murmur in other years.

And like a reformed miscreant, the minister himself seems to be actively, if belatedly, cleaning house. No more welfare for hippies in wilderness communes, more frequent home visits to families on welfare, a proposed work-for-welfare plan involving relocation to areas where there are jobs.

Whether these commonsense policy changes on one side balance the huge budget mistake on the other, is difficult to say. Interference by municipalities who happily ceded all their former responsibility for social welfare to the province and its community resource boards is unnecessary.

The people who have to pay for the extra expenditures, whether through municipal property taxes or provincial sales tax or federal income tax, will soon enough have an opportunity to pass judgement on the competence of the minister.

Imaginative Tax Idea

Shed a tear for the oil companies. Faced with an embarrassment of profits earned in last year's energy crisis, they are reported to be looking for a new method of accounting which will properly reflect inflation and show that their income isn't exorbitantly high.

For example, Shell Canada Ltd. led the way in July as the first Canadian petroleum company to use inflation accounting. In its statement of earnings for the first half of 1974, the company used two figures. Actual dollar profits were $73.7 million, but re-jigged to reflect inflation they were 40 per cent less — only $45 million.

Shell explained that because of inflation there was an overstatement of earnings "when measured on the traditional basis of historical costs," whatever that means. This led the public — for shame — to believe the widely-held but illusory assumption that oil companies made excessive profits out of last year's shortage. Which the companies brought on themselves, if one believes the findings of a New York state grand jury.

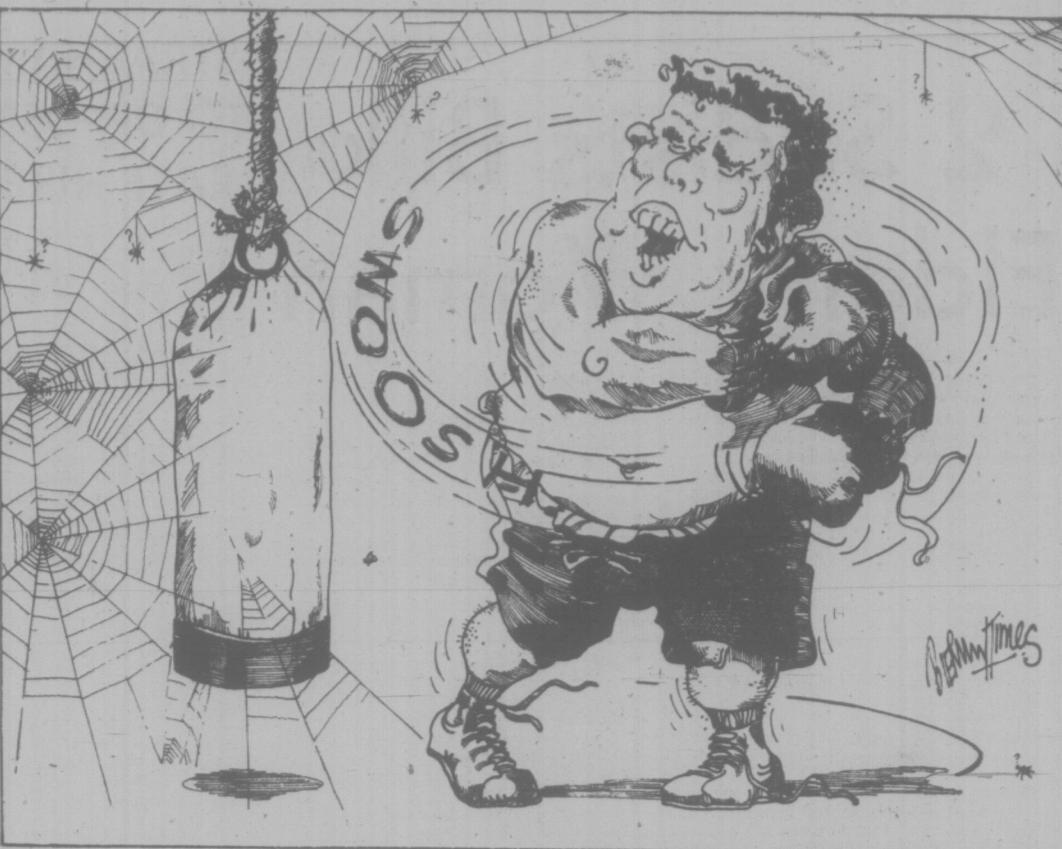

Whether people — and especially the people holding high elected offices — think profits are excessive is important to Shell, because the belief can lead to changes in taxes, royalties and regulations that would damage its capacity to raise money to pay for developing more expensive energy sources.

The accounting profession is at work on the mechanics of an inflation accounting system and other Canadian industries are reportedly examining the idea. We hope it spreads far and wide. It would be invaluable at T-4 time when the taxman cometh in the spring.

Imagine — no more fiddling with expense accounts, charitable donations, medical bills, deductions for non-existent children. Just write neatly across the bottom of the income tax return:

"My earnings were overstated by 40 per cent last year when measured on the traditional basis of historical costs."

"... take THAT usurious bankers ... and THAT foreign property owners ... and THAT B.C. Tel. ... and THAT CPR ... and THAT ..."

Where Do You Draw the Line?

MONTREAL — Any remaining doubts about possible changes in Canadian foreign policy can now be laid to rest. Canada abstained last week in a vote of the executive council of the International Civil Aviation Organization which may have as its eventual effect the attendance of Arab liberation movements at meetings of the United Nations-affiliated body.

In a closed session, an initial resolution was introduced recommending that liberation movements recognized by the Organization for African Unity be given observer status with ICAO.

Tunisia introduced an amendment recommending that Palestine liberation movements recognized by the Arab League also be granted similar status. Then Israel moved a sub-amendment recommending that Palestine liberation organizations not be given such status.

Canada Abstained

Only four countries, Israel, the United States, Ecuador and Nicaragua supported the Israeli sub-amendment. Canada and 33 other countries abstained while 68 countries voted against the Israeli move.

The revised recommendation will be closely studied before going to a full session of ICAO.

In its final form the resolution will probably authorize the ICAO council to invite the African and Arab liberation movements to send observers to appropriate meetings. ICAO was established by the United Nations to oversee and coordinate the development of civil aviation around the world.

It has performed valuable work in building civil, as opposed to commercial aviation, in third world countries and trying to maintain order in civil aviation at an international level. The organization tion for African Unity has been working for the last six years to extend the role of African liberation movements such as the Fretilin and the African National Congress in international organizations.

They are observers now at meetings of the UN's World Health Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization and sent delegations to the recent conference on the law of the sea in Venezuela and the world population conference in Rumania. He said that the leaders of countries in the OAU were fully agreed in this policy and noted that Tunisia was an African country.

FLQ Observers

Participants at the closed-door meeting said Israel interjected with remarks to the effect that while African liberation movements had perhaps a right to a greater role in ICAO affairs they had not, as had certain Arab movements, participated in aircraft hijackings and airport massacres. Canada did not speak on the motion.

One Canadian aviation expert who did not attend the meeting said: "Where do you draw the line in this sort of thing?"

"If African and Arab liberation movements can attend ICAO meetings, the next thing you know there will be a delegation of FLQ observers representing the Quebec liberation movement."

"The greatest strength of ICAO until now has been its ability to rise above narrow political considerations. It will be a lot harder for it to do so now."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Consumer Advocate

I would like to thank all the people who phoned me endorsing my recommendation at the consumer hearing regarding record clubs. Since I was not aware I was being reported I have been surprised at the interest I have aroused and gratified by the unsolicited support I have been offered. It is evident to me now that there is a tremendous number of people who hold the same view as I do, but had not been able to do so for lack of known about the hearing. Some of them have much better documented records of their grievances against these clubs than I have and now intend to present their material to the Better Business Bureau.

As a member of the committee said:

"It is not only the people who appear at the hearings that make it worth-while but the interest engendered in the subjects explored." This has certainly proved so for me and I hope it is not too late for the committee to receive some of this feedback.

My callers were all of the opinion that the companies in question should be forced to serve the consumer in more satisfactory fashion. It is surely unethical business practice to extravagantly blanket advertise a promotion and to continue to advertise without being able to fulfill the implied benefits. I would prefer that it was removed from the realm of the unethical to the realm of the illegal and that certain controls were imposed whereby companies out to capture a large market of consumers would have to show proof that they were willing to provide these consumers with a regional representative.

Perhaps then we would be spared the absolute frustration of discovering we had been addressing our complaints to a vacuum tube in these far away places that spawned the campaign in the first place but have been consistently ignoring our supplications for recognition of our problems ever since.

As a by-product of my attendance at the hearing, I have been haunted by the memory of a case Mr. Schwengen of the Better Business Bureau was recounting.

It concerned an elderly couple who had been victimized by an unscrupulous repairman. It was the old story of a knock at the door, a little repair work needed to be done and, before they knew it, they were being told they had run up a bill of around $1,000.

For some reason they felt they could not go to court although Mr. Schwengen was convinced they could have prosecuted successfully. But we hear of these cases so frequently that there seems to be a pattern in them. The victims are generally elderly and I would think the prospect of court procedure is enough to demoralize them even though I have been assured that the forms are simple and the costs to initiate proceedings as low as $7.50. And so these can men continue to survive by default.

But a new tool will soon be available to us in the form of Consumer Service Centres and I am wondering if it would be possible to incorporate in their structure a trouble shooter who would have the power to investigate cases of abuse and, where necessary, and with the victim's consent, initiate proceedings for those unable to do so for themselves. Is there a law which says the law must be passive rather than active? — Mrs. J. A. Eaton, 5065 Catalina, Tyrone.

"Such mediocrity as this should not go unnoticed. As it is, the building cannot even have the credit of being called ugly."

"Eastern pillbox. All it needs is a great white sign on the front spelling out the name of some chain drugstore. A real credit to some Toronto suburb."

"Another product of the Lego school of architecture."

"A result of the same sort of inspiration which erected the Douglas Building."

"If the B.C. Land building was torn down because it represented no great example of architectural style, there should be no hesitation in tearing down the Nordal Centre as soon as possible."

"When the tourists get off the boat from California and start walking up Government Street, they'll soon feel right at home."

"The only four-storey building that will be five storeys too high."

"Personally speaking, I feel each architectural contribution to our city is an investment in the future and a reflection on the past. And what does the present design of the Nordal Centre reflect but the blandness and cost-cutting resulting from an attitude of economic efficiency and a dearth of imagination? City hall should be offended at the developers for presenting such a project for such an important location."

Many people are being pleasantly surprised at the open view resulting from the demolition of the two buildings on the present site. If a more harmonious and happy creation cannot be devised, the city would be justified in trying to keep the block open until someone with a little love for the city can be found to fill it. — Gordon Price, 1843 Crescent Road.

From the Times of October 11, 1914

Forty-seven hours from San Francisco, the Pacific Coast steamer President arrived at the outer docks shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. This is a new record for the distance, and the fact that she averaged 15½ knots throughout the run shows that she did some hard steaming. On her last inward trip, the President made the run in 49 hours and a strong southeast wind helped her to lower the time this voyage. The steamer is the fastest of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co. fleet.

One future development, Miller said, would be the presentation in another month or so of a report from yet another committee set up last year, a committee which has been studying the health aspects of lead contamination. With this document in hand, the government's environmental hearing board will then hold public hearings on both studies, out of which recommendations will presumably be made to the government, and which the government will presumably act upon in due course.

FOREIGN CONTROL TRIPLES: CAN WE BUY BACK CANADA?

By MEL HURTIG

Canada now has more non-resident ownership and even greater non-resident control of its industry than all of the United States, Britain, Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Japan put together.

While the topic has been the subject of increasing discussion in Canada over the past 18 years, foreign ownership has tripled while we've been talking.

Takeovers

During the years 1974 to 1978, foreign ownership in Canada will increase by a minimum of $25 billion and likely much more. During this five-year period I can safely predict that while takeovers of Canadian businesses will continue at only half to two-thirds the recent rates, many large foreign companies will enter Canada for the first time, and existing foreign-controlled corporations will expand their Canadian assets substantially, with this latter category accounting for most of the new growth of foreign ownership.

How ironic it is that while all other nations around the world have legislated in favor of the protection of their own domestic interest as a first priority, Canada, with the most voluminous body of statistical and analytical documentation on the damage caused by excessive foreign ownership, continues to sell off its land, its natural resources and its industries to foreign control at ever-increasing rates, after 18 years of polite discussion.

Today, late in 1974, we know this:

First, in the overwhelming majority of cases, the increase of foreign ownership in Canada is funded by capital generated in Canada.

Second, during the last few years, as foreign ownership has increased, so too has there been a dramatic hemorrhaging of capital out of Canada.

Third, and perhaps most interesting of all, and the least apparent because of the enormous real costs involved in foreign direct investment, all foreign capital (debt and equity) contributes at best, less than one-tenth of one per cent of GNP growth, according to the latest authoritative study.

Foreign ownership in Canada is now a massive direct contributor to high inflation; to high regional unemployment and to the rapid depletion of our non-renewable natural resources, to reduced industrial research and development, to our failure to rationalize industries, to our failure to expand and to diversify our export markets, and to our improper development of the secondary and service sectors of our economy.

Canada today has an economy with most of its vital sectors foreign-dominated. Measured by assets, the list looks something like this:

Petroleum and coal products 91 per cent.

The automobile industry, 97 per cent.

The aircraft industry, 92 per cent.

Rubber products, 93 per cent.

The computer industry, 93 per cent.

Tobacco products, about 90 per cent.

Transportation equipment, 83 per cent.

Mineral fuels, 81 per cent.

Chemicals and chemical products, 79 per cent.

The machinery industry, 76 per cent.

Foreign Parents

In most years Canada has a high current account deficit. Most of this deficit is accounted for by the billions of dollars U.S. subsidiaries in Canada send back to their foreign parents or their affiliates. To finance this deficit we've been doing two things. First, we've been selling off the ownership of more and more of our country. Secondly, we have been accelerating our exports of non-renewable natural resources.

Most of the supposed valuable two-way trade between Canada and the U.S. is conducted between parent firms and their subsidiaries. Seventy-three per cent of all the exports by U.S. subsidiaries go to their parent companies and 70 per cent of the subsidiaries' imports are from their parent firms. These percentages are steadily increasing. In the process, the obvious happens. Exports leave Canada at relatively low

Fifi's Wake of Suffering Widened by Inefficiency

By SIMON WINCHESTER

In a few more days Honduras, and her costly struggle with Hurricane Fifi will have been all but forgotten by the outside world. The devastation and the death and the hunger will soon be little more than another statistic for the almanacs and the insurance companies. Photographs of newly orphaned children will jostle for space in the Oxfam advertisements with similar heart-stopping pictures from Bangladesh and Chad. To Honduras this tragedy will have been the worst for a century or more, but to countries 500 miles away and over, it has simply been the unavoidable lot of the Tropics. It is becoming clear now, as the effects of the hurricane's fearful majesty are more carefully analysed, that at least some of the lives could have been saved and some of the worst aspects of the disaster lightened had the outside world reacted more efficiently, both before and after Fifi struck.

Fifi was first spotted milling up in the Southern Caribbean on Monday, September 16. At first the disturbance was noted as a tropical storm, trundling slowly westwards. But at 4 a.m. on Tuesday 17, the U.S. Hurricane Centre in Miami issued a formal warning to navigation that the storm had become a hurricane, the sixth of the season, and gave it its gentle name Fifi. The track and the speed of the storm were computed precisely, and the probability of it hitting the north coast of Honduras within 24 hours was officially established as very high indeed.

No course changes in fact occurred, and Fifi slammed into the low lying delta country of Honduras right on schedule on the Wednesday. When it reached the sharp right angled bend in the coastline which marks the end of Honduras and the beginning of Guatemala, it stalled, wedged in the valleys of the Sula and the Aguan rivers. Rain fell in alarming amounts — some say 24 inches fell in 36 hours. The winds, while the eye of the storm was over the sea, adjusted to 100 knots; but over Choloma, the most devastated Honduran town, they only peaked about 40 knots. But the rain brought down massive mud slides and caused enormous floods, and this was the major cause of the disaster.

The first warning of the hurricane must have been telegraphed to the two giant American-owned banana producers in the region — United Fruit and Standard Brands — on the Tuesday. Yet few, if any, of their thousands of workers were evacuated from the banana plantations. The growers say this is because people were reluctant to move. But had they been persuaded to go into hurricane-proof buildings — and there are plenty of these in the centre of San Pedro Sula — the loss of life could have been reduced significantly.

Why did the growers not attend more diligently to their native charges?

After Fifi had struck, the Honduran national emergency committee issued casualty figures of at least 5,000 dead and at least 20 times that number left homeless. The U.S. Ambassador to Tegucigalpa, Mr. Philip Sanchez, flew over the region in a massively publicised expedition two days after the storm, and poured liberal quantities of cold water onto the Honduran figures. This prompted countries who were then preparing to send disaster relief aid to back off: Sanchez intimated that the U.S. forces had been devastated by the storm.

But within 24 hours it became dramatically apparent that the Ambassador was woefully wrong in his sanguine estimates. The storm had evidently caused far more than the relatively small loss of life he had supposed. The banana crop had been almost entirely ruined.

An international effort of huge proportions was needed urgently.

Aid at last began to pour in over the weekend. The Mexicans, the Germans, the Cubans, and the British rushed materials and men to the region. By last week the organization of relief, distribution of food and water and medicine, and the evacuation of stranded villagers was being almost totally organized by a force of 60 Americans from the Zone and 50 British troops from Belize. Tragedy is now being tidied up as well as possible.

Inevitably, domestic politics have entered the arena. The United States Congress has been getting increasingly irritated of late at the seeming waste of funds in keeping large numbers of American troops in the Canal Zone. Their work here for the last few days will certainly be used by the Pentagon as a good justification of their remaining there. Similarly the British military presence in Belize, the drain on the Exchequer which many Labor MPs must regard as unconscionable, has now been seen to have proved positively useful. (And in terms of Anglo-Honduran relations never previously ecstatic at the best of times, the use of British forces must have worked wonders.)

If any lesson has been learned from this miserable affair, it is that areas prone to this kind of violent activity — and those places too that lie in earthquake zones and under the lees of active volcanoes — should have nearby some sort of contingency force — perhaps provided by the United Nations, to investigate and then cope with the disaster. The banana crop had been almost entirely ruined. An international effort of huge proportions was needed urgently.

Trudeau's One Word 'Dialogue'

By RICHARD GWYN

It was one of those sayings much like "A wet bird never flies by night," which no doubt conceals deep meaning. "One doesn't cross the Rubicon," Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons last night, "just to go fishing."

Indeed not: Even Julius Caesar only risked the crossing to go to war. The problem was that Trudeau himself, once across the other side, didn't even fish.

The occasion of Trudeau's speech — the start of the first session of the new Parliament — was the most important available to him since the election, and will remain the most important for another half-dozen months or so.

After one hour and 20 minutes, Trudeau had dealt with three subjects: reform of Parliament, bilingualism, federal-provincial relations. Then he looked up at the clock, looked down at his notes, paused, and said: "There are other subjects I could deal with: Native rights . . . the status of women . . . um . . . inflation." Then he sat down. Silence. Another pause, the Liberals applauded.

One word, literally one word, about the problem that dwarfs all the others until it becomes insignificant. This from a prime minister who the day before had proposed to "dialogue" with Canadians about their economic ills.

Editorial comment is superfluous. Ed Broadbent, the New Democrat House Leader said it better than any columnist could: "Nero himself only risked the crossing to go to war. The problem was that Trudeau himself, once across the other side, didn't even fish."

Nero, in fact, would have been smarter. Trudeau left untouched a half dozen pages of notes on inflation when he cut short his speech.

The blunder was so glaring, so harmful to the government's post-election momentum, and so elementary that the only explanation that makes any sense relates not to any policy decision on the matter but to Trudeau's personality. "He hates to bore people" a Toronto Liberal MP offered later by way of mitigation. "He realized he had lost the attention of the House and cut short his speech — at an unfortunate point."

An odd inconsistency has marred Trudeau's post-election style. He has stayed mostly out of sight, to the point where his staff have been pulled onto the public stage by reporters desperate for a personality to attach a quote to. Like Foreign Affairs Assistant Ivan Head who told a journalist Trudeau intends to follow a "moralistic" foreign policy. (His pronouncements are known around town as: the view from Ivan's head.)

Yet Trudeau is very much the man in charge. He is operating with a self-confidence quite unlike his mood after 1968 when he was new to the game, or after his near-defeat in 1972. Trudeau, never given to self-mockery, now tells the occasional joke at his own expense. At a celebration party at 24 Sussex for two dozen Liberals shortly after the election, Trudeau said to them, "I'm glad I won a majority. Now I can go back to being arrogant, and telling everyone to fiddle-diddle off."

The change is sharpest in the realm of politics. Once uncertain of his political skills, Trudeau now moves with complete self-confidence. He has set in motion a program of consultations with the Liberal Party, a body he once pretty well ignored, that's designed to map out a four-year legislative program that will, he hopes, ensure victory in the next election.

This self-confidence carried over into his speech. On the subjects he dealt with, he spoke strongly that the government now could tackle "long term tasks". These included a "radical" reform of parliamentary procedure, needed not only for efficiency but because "it is essential that Parliament be at the heart of the country".

Air Fare Hikes Flounder on Charters

VANCOUVER (CP) — A refusal by charter airlines to cooperate with 40 North Atlantic airlines belonging to the International Air Transport Association (IATA) has torpedoed the association's new increased fares agreement.

The agreement, intended to cover fares for the next 16 months, starting Nov. 1, was junked at a meeting Wednesday in San Diego, Calif.

Representatives of the airlines were to meet again today to see if they can work out a temporary agreement for the winter.

The agreement crumbled under pressure from six charter airlines, including Wardair Canada Ltd., who refused to go along with charter fare increases of about 20 per cent proposed by the IATA carriers.

The IATA airlines wanted a charter fare that would economically protect scheduled flights, which must depart whether all seats are filled or not. For scheduled flights they had proposed fare increases for the Vancouver-London route would have ranged from around 10 to 25 per cent.

Members of government regulatory bodies of Canada, the U.S. and Europe met informally in Montreal earlier this week on the North Atlantic fares impasse but came to no agreement.

The Canadian Transport Commission stood by its policy of accepting the lowest charter fare offered by a Canadian airline as the minimum for Canada, a commission spokesman said.

This left the way open for Wardair, which has proposed an eight per cent fare increase, to firm up its prices and for other carriers like Britain's Laker Airways to match Wardair's fares.

Customers hoping for a fine wine at a bargain rate were disappointed, though.

The British Columbia Liquor Administration branch in Victoria confirmed Thursday that the figures were wrong. The wine was in fact reduced to $4.70 from $7.25 a bottle.

The erroneous figures were in a story distributed by the Canadian Press Wednesday.

Air Canada was understood to be among the carriers seeking the 20 per cent charter increase. Air Canada is an important charter carrier as well as scheduled airline.

The IATA fares agreement, worked out in weeks of negotiations in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Geneva, Switzerland, depended on an agreement being worked out with the charter carriers. Since this was obviously not possible, several carriers, including CP Air, moved Wednesday to rescind the Atlantic package. IATA fares agreements depend on unanimity, so even one carrier can cancel them.

Wine Cheaper, But No Bargain

VANCOUVER (CP) — A liquor store manager here said Thursday he was deluged with customers following a report Wednesday that the price of a French wine, Medoc Chailou, was being reduced in price to $2.25 from $4.70 for a large bottle.

Customers hoping for a fine wine at a bargain rate were disappointed, though.

The British Columbia Liquor Administration branch in Victoria confirmed Thursday that the figures were wrong. The wine was in fact reduced to $4.70 from $7.25 a bottle.

Thetis Lake Park offers a wide variety of plants, birds and animals for nature watching—and it's just outside the city limits.

There are 412 species of herbaceous plants, shrubs and trees in the Park; a total of 94 species of birds have been observed there in summer or winter, and 200 varieties of mushrooms and fungi and 69 species of moss have been found in its wood and grassy knolls.

A complete list of lower plant forms, ferns, reptiles, amphibians and mammals found in the park, is contained in the booklet, Natural History of Thetis Lake Park, published by the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association.

The park is owned by the city and comprises 1,370 acres of land and water. It is probably the most important recreational area in the capital region, since it is located no more than five miles from heavily populated urban areas.

Accesses to the park are from Trans-Canada Highway and Highland Road.

At one time the park was used mainly by swimmers. Today, walking or hiking has become the park's chief all-year-round form of recreation, even in winter.

On the east side of the lower lake, the TPNSA manages a 400-acre nature sanctuary—the first of its kind established in Canada.

Hikers interested in upgrading their outdoor knowledge should attend the association's nature tours in spring. It will give them a start on identifying plants and birds.

The history of the city's management of the park is anything but inspiring. It allowed logging, permitted the erection of power lines in the park, and turned a blind-eye when the former provincial government sold the publicly-owned watershed on the west side of the upper lake, to a private concern.

The land was bought back by the government last month.

And only two years ago, an alderman suggested selling a section of the park on the south side of the Trans-Canada Highway. To arouse public resistance to alienation of any further areas of the park, the association was formed in 1967. Since then it has acted as a watchdog.

UNPAID BILLS BLAMED ON TOO FEW PUNCHERS

The provincial government's unpaid bills are the result of a shortage of keypunch operators, according to the provincial finance department.

"Government policy is to pay all accounts as quickly as possible, and under ordinary circumstances this would not take longer than 30 days," said a department spokesman.

"But a shortage of keypunch operators in B.C. and across Canada has created delays in processing provincial government accounts, he said.

The unusual number of unpaid accounts came to light when Saanich Conservative MLA Hugh Curtis said he had learned of at least six unpaid accounts from B.C. Ferries and other accounts from several government departments.

"The whole thing is a mess," said Curtis. "Some of the accounts date back to the spring."

One bill, dating back to April, is for $14,000 and another from the spring involves $11,000 owed by the department of highways.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said bills from B.C. Ferries are processed and sent to the department of finance within a week and after that it's up to finance to send out cheques.

Finance department staff have been working overtime and on weekends on a voluntary basis to cope with the backlog of bills, according to the spokesman.

The public service has been advertising for keypunch operators for months, he said, and attempts to utilize outside keypunch services have not been too successful because of shortages throughout the industry.

Curtis said the shortage of keypunch staff was a "phony excuse" and the lack of payment is apparently a sore point with many B.C. companies.

Representatives of accounting services in town confirmed Thursday there has been a shortage of operators for months.

One spokesman said businesses are experiencing problems because of the shortage and she knew the government had a huge backlog of work.

The province is trying to find anybody it can to work as keypunch operators, she said, and is even paying them while they train.

Curtis said the backlog simply reflects poor business practice on the part of the government.

Early Death For Turkeys

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — About 250 turkeys bound for Thanksgiving dinner came to a premature end Thursday.

The birds, part of a shipment of 1,440 turkeys destined for a processing plant, were killed when the farm truck they were loaded on collided with an armored truck on the freeway, about 35 miles east of Vancouver.

Driver of the armored van, Robert Webster, 28, of Burnaby, was treated at MSA General Hospital for multiple cuts and bruises and a dislocated hip. The $10,000 van was described as a write-off.

Farm truck driver Louis Joseph Hoffer, 22, of Matsqui, escaped injury. Damaged to the truck and loss from the dead birds totalled about $8,000.

DELAY ADDS $18M

OTTAWA (CP) — Delay in $140 million forecast last construction of an extension to an oil pipeline from Western Canada has added almost $18 million to the cost of the project, an official of Interprovincial Pipelines Ltd. said today.

H. H. Buckley, an engineer with the company, told the National Energy Board (NEB) that the cost of the extension now is estimated at $160 million, compared with

Paper Costs Must Rise: Industry

Inflation was another key factor. Previously, the industry spoke of $100,000 in capital costs to provide a daily ton of produce but now it was a matter of $200,000.

Birchell said pollution abatement costs have edged up the capital expenses of existing mills, while expansions and new investments require an additional 10 to 15 per cent for unproductive expenses.

He said these rapidly increasing costs and the shortage of materials have forced paper manufacturers to sacrifice cosmetic qualities in paper, but the performance quality and the ability to turn out a consistent product have improved.

and 6.9 per cent on capital employed.

Chemical prices have "gone through the roof" and the chemical industry has made it clear that it will require substantial price increases to justify the investment it will have to make to meet future demands by the paper industry.

William Brown, director of sales for Rolland Paper Co. Ltd., told the delegates the paper industry's average return on total assets over the last five years was 3.1 per cent, compared with 7.8 per cent for the manufacturing industry.

For Rolland, there were returns of 2.2 per cent on sales and 2.8 per cent on capital employed, compared with the manufacturing industry's returns of 4.4 per cent on sales and 6.9 per cent on capital employed.

Thomas Birchall of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. said since the reduction of tariffs, competition has intensified and small versatile machines must be replaced by wide, fast specialized machinery that boosts capital costs sharply.

Another fact of life is the end of the era when paper plants can dot the countryside, he said. "Now the new machinery must be close to the source of fibre."

Thomas Birchall of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. said since the reduction of tariffs, competition has intensified and small versatile machines must be replaced by wide, fast specialized machinery that boosts capital costs sharply.

Another fact of life is the end of the era when paper plants can dot the countryside, he said. "Now the new machinery must be close to the source of fibre."

For Rolland, there were returns of 2.2 per cent on sales and 2.8 per cent on capital employed, compared with the manufacturing industry's returns of 4.4 per cent on sales and 6.9 per cent on capital employed.

Inflation Protection Possible

EDMONTON (CP) — Inflation poses every possibility for disaster for Canada, a disaster which would be worldwide and come without warning, A. J. E. Child, president of Burns Foods Ltd., said Wednesday.

"Canada can protect itself, and come through relatively unscathed, if we are willing to undertake sensible and courageous measures," Child said in a speech to a Canadian Restaurant Association meeting, but the measures have to be initiated now.

Child said, "North America has inflation on a modest scale ever since the Second World War. It was no problem as long as income increases exceeded price increases. Wages and salaries had risen by several hundred per cent since 1947 but prices generally creased productivity and supply. New technology and economies of scale had kept down the prices of such things as appliances and petrochemical products and large grain harvests and been responsible for low meat prices.

But normal anti-inflation factors no longer appeared to be effective. Wage and salary increases were having an abnormal effect on costs. In secondary industry, direct labor costs and indirect or hidden labor cost increases in the form of municipal charges, supplies, materials and services were pushing up prices.

In agriculture, producers of livestock for the first time were claiming that they were being seriously hurt by cost increases other than the cost of feed grains. Coupled with cost increases were shortages of some major products, such as grains, oilsseeds, sugar, plastics and paper. The prices of many foods and other products had risen accordingly.

Child said the cost increases could almost all be traced back to increases in wage rates.

There was not much relief in sight for 1975 so far as supply shortages were concerned and there appeared to be no end to the other great inflationary factor — the rise in wage rates.

This posed two dangers.

One was that technology and mass production could no longer match the rise in wage rates and keep costs down.

The other was that large inequalities in income were appearing.

Workers who belonged to strong unions were getting the highest percentage increase.

At the low end of the scale, pensioners were getting only modest increases and some classes of workers would no doubt lag behind the strong unions and civil services.

At the upper levels, salaries to management had not kept pace percentage wise. This might not bring forth sympathy from most people, but the economy suffered if management purchasing power and incentives are reduced.

Child said there is no doubt that much of the present inflation has been due to strong demand. Most people in North America have had eight substantial discretionary income and easy credit. As prices have escalated there has been over-buying, because of fear that prices will be even higher next month or next year, or fear that goods will become scarcer.

Barrett Almost Called to Stand

The legislative committee studying real property taxation came within two votes of calling Premier David Barrett to its hearings Thursday.

A motion to seek information from Barrett failed 4-3 after Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said such a request would be a waste of time because questions in the minds of the committee constitute "government policy (which) obviously won't be divulged to this committee."

Only opposition members on the committee favored the motion, put by Alex Fraser (SC-Cariboo) and supported by Don Phillips (SC-South Peace River) and Hugh Curtis (PC-Saanich) and the Islands.

Phillips, who had attempted a similar motion last week and was ruled out of order by chairman Carl Liden (NDP-Delta), said the committee ought to know what formula the premier, who is also minister of finance, expects to use for homeowner and resource grants, for removing school tax from property and how much real property tax revenue he expects to collect.

"That's the nuts and bolts of it. That's why we're sitting here," Phillips said.

Fraser had been concerned about statements the premier was alleged to have made on his tour of the interior in reassuring people their property taxes would not be exorbitant as a result of a proposal to set 1975 assessments at 100 per cent of property value.

The committee would not be able to make a recommendation to the legislature without knowing the wishes and feelings of the finance minister, Fraser said.

Liden allowed the motion, although he called it "totally wrong" because the legislature had appointed the committee, not the finance minister.

Later in the day, Lorimer gave the members the sobering news that no matter what the committee may recommend in the way of reform, the provincial assessment commission is going ahead on the assumption that assessments will be 100 per cent of value.

Liden was instructed to contact commissioner Percy Wright to ensure that two rolls are prepared, the second adhering to the current practice of assessing at 50 per cent of value, in case the committee is not ready to recommend or the government is not ready to undertake reforms in time for the coming tax year.

The committee was warned by several people making submissions to proceed cautiously in implementing changes.

Prof. Stanley Hamilton, a University of B.C. scholar on urban land economics, said "if you bring in half of the good ideas now in haste, you may not get the change to bring in the rest later."

He said he feared if changes are not right initially it could mean the whole reform scheme may falter. But if there were some assurance of corrections later, a year of inequities could be tolerated.

It was impossible to come up with all the right answers, even in a long time, the chances are even slimmer when there is haste, when all complications have not been investigated.

Final sitting of the committee is scheduled for Vancouver city hall Oct. 18.

A Tax Plan to Save Large Family Holdings

A proposal to separate development rights from raw land as a means of preserving large family holdings was put before a legislative committee on taxation Wednesday.

The plan proposed by the Gulf Islands Trust was described by vice-chairman Marc Holmes, accompanied by chairman Hilary Brown, to members of the select committee on municipal matters hearing public submissions on real property taxation.

Holmes stressed the proposa-lal for transfer of development rights was "an extreme in imaginative thinking" that would require much more thought before it could be considered for legislation.

It was "rather rarefied economic air," he said, but it would provide for needed development while keeping intact larger parcels of land such as

gards facing heavy pressure from increasing taxation.

The holder of large land parcels, for whatever purpose, is stunned and resentful at the sudden tax increase and fearful of the implications of 100 per cent market value assessment expected to be forthcoming," the brief said.

"It can be agreed that no large property holder should expect special low tax rates while he hold land for a few years to make a killing later, accidentally or intentionally."

There are number of arrangements that could be made to adjust the actual tax payable if land is not subdivided, the brief said, but a further concept takes the positive step of encouraging land preservation rather than allowing it to be cut up.

Through establishment of development rights a parcel of land would be taxed as non-developable once the accompanying rights have been sold, with the transfer registered at the land titles office,

Such a step would be "in-mutable," inasmuch as any legislation is unchangeable, he said.

There could be more elus-terating of developable land, with resulting cheaper servicing, with those areas most suitable for housing going to that purpose, the brief said.

Owners maintaining a greenbelt would share in the developer's profits by the sale of their development rights.

For example using two five-acre parcels each with five-acre parcels development rights; the owner of one could sell his rights to the other, enabling him to double the development potential of the second parcel.

There would be 20 subdivid-ed parcels on the one tract and the other 50 acres would remain greenbelt indefinitely.

"It follows reasonably that a special act and a special trust was created to preserve the Islands. It further follows reasonably that imaginative fiscal regulations must be waived to make this possible," Holmes told the com-

mutable," inasmuch as any legislation is unchangeable, he said.

Super Board Not Marketing Answer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A super-marketing board is not the answer to British Columbia's food marketing problems, says the president of the B.C. branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

"It still leaves the premise that the marketing system is fine underneath," said Ada Brown. "We feel there should be an examination of some of the principles."

Mrs. Brown was commenting on Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich's announcement Tuesday that he wants to set

CYC Needs More Money To Meet Its Demands

OTTAWA (CP) — The Company of Young Canadians (CYC) needs more money if it is to meet the demand for its services, Dal Broadbent, CYC executive director, said today in releasing the company's annual report.

The company now works out of every province, the Yukon, Northwest Territories and Labrador, is involved in 263 projects and has almost doubled its staff to 423 from 230 volunteers in the last year on a $4 million budget, he said at a news conference.

However, due to the CYC's low budget, this expansion which would have enabled the CYC to answer the requests from citizens needing the company's resources, will not be continued," he said.

"Once again, the priorities seem to lie elsewhere and the efforts being made to repair the injustices that have been perpetrated with respect to disenfranchised Canadians are still blatantly inadequate."

The CYC programs are aimed at helping underprivileged groups gain some sense of control over their economic and social environment. The underprivileged include the poor, the unemployed, the dispossessed and the powerless.

MONEY NOT EVERYTHING

Government programs such as Local Improvement Program (LIP) and Opportunities For Youth (OFY) are of little use to those who don't know how to go about getting the funds, he said. The CYC work involved showing the needy how to take advantage of opportunities to change their life situation.

"Giving people money is not necessarily helping them," he said. "They must be taught how to correct their life situation."

The CYC annual report included details of seven projects the organization completed, from providing the know-how to set up a co-operative television outlet in Hull, Que., to organizing farmers in the northern Alberta town of Manning into a self-help group through collective action.

The company was established by an act of Parliament in June 1966.

Inspection Services

A demonstration of the inspection services of the federal department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs will be held at the next meeting of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The meeting will be held Monday, Oct. 21, at 1 p.m. in the National Film Board theatre, 816 Government St.

FAMED TRACK CLOSES

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Hialeah race track, famous for a half-century as a fashionable showplace for thoroughbred horses, apparently will not open for a 51st season.

Stockholders of the financially-burdened track have voted to sell Hialeah's prime racing dates this winter, Jan. 17-March 4, to nearby Gulfstream Park for more than $7 million.

The action is subject to approval by the Florida Board of Business Regulation, but state officials say that such approval probably would be obtained.

Indian Act Shift Eyed

OTTAWA (CP) — A full-time minister of Indian affairs and allowing Indians to swear in court on a ceremonial mask or other sacred article rather than the Bible are among proposed changes in the Indian Act being considered this week by a special meeting of the National Indian Brotherhood.

The proposals are contained in an interim report of an Indian Act study team financed by the federal government and administered by the Alberta Indian Association.

Harold Cardinal, president of the Alberta group, earlier this week listed amendments to the Indian Act as one of the three main issues to be dealt with by meetings of the brotherhood, voice of Canada's 500,000 registered Indians, and committed of the federal cabinet.

The wide-ranging changes proposed by the study team still need approval from Indian organizations across Canada before being submitted to the cabinet.

Among the 471 proposed clauses is one that would seal off the new Indian Act from court attacks based on the Canadian Bill of Rights.

In the past brotherhoods have criticized the piecemeal changes sought and sometimes successfully based on the Bill of Rights.

The proposals also would give band councils jurisdiction over welfare and would empower them to have a healthy welfare recipient work for his payments.

The changes also would continue to make income earned by Indians on reserves non-taxable and would double for Indians the income tax exemptions of other taxpayers.

The larger decisions are needed to avoid double payment for services like education, health and other rights which are prepaid by the lands surrendered," said the study team.

Free health care and education would be permanently established by other proposals.

Another proposal would stop the present practice of white men marrying Indians and attaining Indian status. Both Indian men and women would retain status despite marriage to a non-Indian, thereby putting Indian women on an equal basis with men.

In some other proposed changes:

Indians would be given preference in getting jobs and promotions in the Indian affairs department. All department employees must take an oath to uphold Indian rights.

The Canada Council would provide a special division to encourage and assist Indian art.

Indians would be allowed to practise traditional medicine on reserves and would not be liable for any damages alleged to have resulted from their practice.

Treaty money paid to Indians would be doubled.

No hunting or trapping fees to be paid by Indians, and Indians would be exempt from the Migratory Birds Act.

Bank Bias Cited

OTTAWA (CP) — Chartered banks are holding back on special loans to business, farmers and fishermen provided under legislation to help small enterprises, John Wise (PC-Elgin) complained in the Commons Thursday night.

He said one major chartered bank granted only 12 loans under the Small Business Loans Act last year.

Wise, a dairy farmer, said when banks are faced with demand for loans under legislation covering farmers and fishermen, they have three stock answers:

The bank manager says he has never heard of the legislation, or that it is against bank policy to provide loans under the acts, or that all funds allocated for loans under the acts have been used.

Finance Minister John Turner should persuade the banks to grant such loans or should propose requirements to compel them, Wise said.

Bud Cullen, parliamentary secretary to Turner, said the acts have played a useful role for many small enterprises.

Total loans to farmers and fishermen under the legislation had reached more than $2 billion by last year, while $30 million had been made available to small business.

But Cullen said lending has declined under these acts in recent years, probably because the allowable interest rate has diverged more widely from commercial rates.

SIMPLY HAIR-RAISING

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Barbers here may not be able to put hair on a man's chest, but if he's got it, they'll dye it, curl it, or even landscape it.

"Haircuts are definitely moving down the body these days," said stylist Mr. Eckhard who operates two parlors. "I've had to put in two extra booths to keep up with the demand."

Most men who want their chest hair dyed are "somewhat on in years and don't want to give away their age when they're out sunbathing."

But some clients have more exotic motives, like Irish-born businessman James McCarthy who had his chest hair trimmed into the shape of a shamrock.

"I'm living proof the Irish shamrock can grow in America," McCarthy said.

New Federal-Provincial Talks To Determine Future Oil Price

OTTAWA (CP) — Further federal-provincial talks are expected this winter to decide what the price of oil to Canadians should be, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

The minister said during throne speech debate that the freezing of domestic oil prices last winter gave Canadians the lowest average crude oil price in the western industrialized world.

The price will continue at $6.50 per barrel, compared with international prices of about $11.70, until next June under an agreement reached at a federal-provincial meeting last March.

"There is also the prospect in the coming months of further federal-provincial consultations . . . to determine where the single oil price for Canadians should go," he said.

Funds from an export tax, which covers the difference between the domestic and international prices, are being used to subsidize the cost of crude bought on the international market for Eastern Canada.

The minister said Canada, as a consumer, "is in full support of any attempt to negotiation a reduction in the international price for oil."

Macdonald said he is awaiting completion of a National Energy Board report on crude oil supplies and demand.

The report, expected by the end of the month, will give "a sound foundation to continue to tailor federal energy requirements to the future requirements to Canadians."

He also said talks were "advancing steadily" on a treaty with the U.S. to ensure the security of pipelines running through each country.

An American company, The El Paso Gas Co., questioned the security of a pipeline through Canada to bring Alaskan gas to market. El Paso proposes a competing pipeline and tanker system.

"With these unfounded criticisms laid to rest, the two countries will be better able to judge the merits of a joint gas pipeline through the Mackenzie River Valley."

Macdonald said the federal government also had been active in research and development of prospects for shipping coal from Western Canada to eastern markets.

Western coal now is more attractive in view of a 50-percent increase in cost of coal imported from the U.S., as well as higher railway freight rates.

Ontario Hydro, a major importer of U.S. coal, has focused its attention on locating reserves of high volatile bituminous coal reserve in Western Canada, the minister said.

He added that domestic demand for coal last year was 27 million tons, but he expected that figure "will increase greatly in the years ahead."

WATER EXPORT PLEA DAMMED

OTTAWA (CP) — Charging that Canada is considering exporting water to the United States, a freshman MP said Thursday he is determined to barage several cabinet members with questions until he gets some "strong statements."

Bob Wenman (PC-Fraser Valley West) raised the issue in the Commons, saying the government "is preparing to go forward with the export of water."

"We need to develop a firm policy against water export," he said. "We need strong statements from the prime minister and from his chief ministers responsible for energy, resources and environment."

However, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald later told the House no such proposition had been made to cabinet and "there is no grand scheme."

Since he took over the energy portfolio he had not seen any basis for Canada ever agreeing "to export so fundamental product as water," he added.

Wenman said outside the House he bases his charges on a confidential report prepared by former environment minister Jack Davis, who was defeated in the July 8 election.

The U.S. needs vast quantities of water if it is to become self-sufficient in energy, as proposed by President Gerald Ford and his predecessor, Richard Nixon, Wenman said.

He said the U.S. will have to turn to gasification of coal in Colorado and Arizona and that the Colorado River will not be able to meet the demands for huge quantities of water needed for the gasification process.

Citizen Beefs Invited By City

EDMONTON (CP) — City council unanimously supported a motion Wednesday to establish an office of municipal ombudsman, with the ombudsman appointed by the provincial government.

“It’s becoming more and more clear that the office of municipal ombudsman is necessary with the increasing bigness of the city administration” said Ald. Una Evans, who introduced the motion.

“Citizens are taking their complaints more and more frequently to self-styled Ralph Nader types.”

Woman Bilked Firm Of $30,000

EDMONTON (CP) — A 21-year-old Edmonton woman was sentenced to one year in jail followed by two years probation when she appeared in court Thursday on charges of defrauding an insurance company of more than $30,000.

Sylvia A. McIntosh was charged after 31 cheques totalling $30,350 were issued from the files of the Co-Operative Fire and Casualty Co. between Jan. 23 and Dec. 8, 1973.

Provincial Judge C. H. Rolf ruled the term would be served at the Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institute.

The woman was charged with seven other people after 177 fraudulent cheques, in amounts ranging from $200 to $5,250 to a total of $239,917 were issued from 94 company files.

Probe End Near

EDMONTON (CP) — A judicial inquiry into civic affairs approached conclusion Thursday but Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Northwest Territories supreme court said he doesn’t expect to complete his report before mid-January, 1975.

The inquiry, requested by city council, has covered 36 days of public hearings spread over more than two months. Forty witnesses have been called, 122 exhibits filed and 36 volumes of testimony containing more than 3,000 pages of evidence compiled.

Snow Help Promised

REGINA (CP) — Rural municipalities in Saskatchewan who spent lots of money on snow removal last winter will be getting some help from the provincial government.

Municipal Affairs Minister E. J. Wood, the minister responsible for the municipal road assistance authority, said that cheques totalling $2 million are being mailed to rural municipalities to help defray snow-removal costs, which were three or more times above normal last year.

Election Voided

WINNIPEG (CP) — The election of New Democrat Harvey Patterson to the provincial legislature in June, 1973, was declared void Thursday by the Manitoba Court of Queen’s Bench.

Mr. Justice James E. Wilson and Mr. Justice A. C. Hamilton ruled that the election in the Winnipeg riding of Crescentwood was full of irregularities and mistakes.

Patterson was declared the winner by one vote over Conservative L. O. Pollard after an electoral dispute and a decision in the Manitoba Court of Appeal last fall.

Grain Damaged

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Pool Elevators says much of the grain being harvested in the province this month is tough or damp and shows signs of frost damage.

In its weekly crop report, the producer-owned co-operative says some progress in harvesting was made last week. Farmers were able to combine for three to five days in most areas. Snow which fell on the week-end, however, halted operations for several days.

Watergate Defence Now Smiling

WASHINGTON (WP) — Watergate prosecutors are becoming increasingly worried over the prospect of getting a jury at the Watergate cover-up trial that might balk at the thought of sending anyone to jail.

A growing number of prospective jurors are apparently telling U.S. District Court Judge John Sirica behind closed doors that they think it unfair to prosecute former President Nixon's aides and campaign advisers now that Nixon himself has been pardoned.

Judge Sirica has evidently been accepting them for jury duty so long as they add that they still think they can decide the case solely on the evidence presented during the trial and on Sirica's instructions in the law.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had asked earlier this week for automatic dismissal of any prospective jurors who said the Nixon pardon left them with a firm distaste for prosecuting his old subordinates, but Sirica seems to have rejected the suggestion.

Now the only way prosecutors can keep such prospects off the jury is through the exercise of so-called "peremptory challenges."

They have only six of these.

Jaworski hinted at the government's problem Wednesday in voicing fears that lawyers for the five cover-up trial defendants may yet wind up with "an unwarranted advantage" in the selection of a trial jury.

The special prosecutor asked Judge Sirica to offset that possibility by changing his plans for the final stage of jury selection when "peremptory challenges" are to be exercised.

It was the first clear indication that a certain and perhaps substantial number of prospective jurors may be inclined to look with disfavor on continued prosecution of the scandal.

Before this, defense lawyers have been the ones contending that they cannot get fair and impartial juries because of all the pretrial publicity about the Watergate case. But this week, they have been emerging from each day's sessions with broader and broader smiles. The reactions to the Nixon pardon appear to have brightened their mood.

LIBERTY A PET

DETROIT (UPI) — President Ford prefaced his speech at a $50-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner Thursday night with what he described as a "shaggy dog" story about his new house pet, a golden retriever named Liberty.

Pulling a dog biscuit out of his pocket and waving it to the crowd of 4,000, Ford explained his daughter, Susan, and White House photographer Dave Kennerly presented him with the dog this week as a gift.

But he said they told him it took a lot of persuading to convince the kennel owner where they bought the pet it would have a good home.

Apparently, Ford said, the kennel owner still wasn't satisfied, because he asked the two: "Does the guy have a steady job?"

The president said the pair was at a loss to come up with an answer for that one.

Ford said he named the dog "Liberty" in honor of the U.S.'s 200th birthday in 1976.

U.S. Election Reform Curbs the 'Fat Cats'

WASHINGTON — The House gave final approval, 365 to 24, to the most far-reaching campaign spending reform bill in U.S. history Thursday and sent it to President Ford for his expected signature.

Effective next year, the bill would impose strict limits on the amount of money that any person or interest can give and on the amount candidates can spend in campaigns for president, House and Senate. It would provide for public financing of presidential campaigns — but not for House and Senate races — and create an independent commission armed with civil enforcement powers to police the law.

The centre for public financing of elections which lobbied for public financing of all federal elections, called the bill "the only decent legacy of Watergate. Congress has taken the most important step yet toward reducing the influence of the fat cats and special interests."

House Majority Leader John J. Rhodes (Rep. Ariz.) said he still considered the measure "a bill to preserve Democratic majorities in Congress," on grounds that spending limits favor better-known incumbents with built-in ways to get publicity. But Rhodes and most Republicans voted for the measure for the same reason that Ford is expected to sign into law — the huge sums of sometimes tainted money raised by the 1972 Nixon campaign and exposed by the Watergate story makes opposition to reform politically very difficult.

Several members raised questions as to whether limits on contributions might violate the constitutional right of free speech by limiting the extent to which a person could express his views of a candidate in a paid advertisement. Sponsors of the legislation admitted this was a difficult question but argued that if the limits are to be effective they must be applied across the board.

The bill provides that no individual can give more than $1,000 to one candidate in a federal election (for president or Congress) and not more than $25,000 for all candidates for federal office in one campaign season. This maximum could be given for a primary election, again for a run-off, and again for the general election. No organization could contribute more than $5,000 to a candidate. No individual could contribute to his own campaign more than $15,000 for a House race, $35,000 for a Senate race and $50,000 for a presidential race during the entire campaign. Presidential campaigns need not accept public financing, but if they go the private route, they must still abide by the contribution and spending ceilings.

BUCKS DROP GARRETT
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Bucks have asked waivers on guard Dick Garrett, a five-year National Basketball Association veteran who was signed as a free agent last Jan. 8.

Nixon Gets Legal Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States justice department has offered to defend former president Richard Nixon and three of his top advisers in civil suits accusing them of improper political harassment, department officials say.

Assistant Attorney-General Henry Petersen made the offer about two weeks ago in letters to lawyers for Nixon, former attorney-general John Mitchell and former presidential advisers H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, officials said Thursday night.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman currently are being tried on charges of trying to cover up the Watergate scandal which forced Nixon's resignation.

All five pending civil suits involved in the department offer resulted from aspects of the Watergate scandal.

Petersen's deputy, Kevin Maroney, said in a telephone interview that some of the five men have accepted the offer but declined to say which ones.

"It's normal to represent a former official who is sued for acts when he was an official of the government," Maroney said.

The labor department said wholesale prices, which recently had been rising at an annual rate of 35 per cent, had virtually levelled off in September. The rise reported Thursday was one-tenth of 1 per cent.

Although last month's wholesale price increases was small, the over-all index was still 19.7 per cent above a year ago and farm prices have turned back up again since the department sampled them in mid-September. The one-month levelling-off is thus not likely to be mirrored any time soon at the retail level.

Nevertheless, the good news on inflation was the first in many months and both the White House and the depressed stock market were heartened by it.

However, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, said the dropoff was only temporary. "I don't consider that more than one of the ripples on a wave," he told a congressional hearing.

Burns suggested Congress might want to go beyond Ford's anti-inflation program.

The chairman said he worried over the amount of money — $80 billion so far — that oil importing countries have to pay oil exporting countries since oil prices quadrupled.

This is "a problem that is simply unmanageable," he said.

Expert Sees Inflation Ebb

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford's chief economist says the country can look for the rate of inflation — now 12 per cent — to decline 2 or 3 percentage points by springtime.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, volunteered that figure when asked to supply a number for the president's Tuesday prediction of "a meaningful reduction" in the rate of inflation by early 1975.

Meantime, much of the economic news pointed toward higher — not lower — prices.

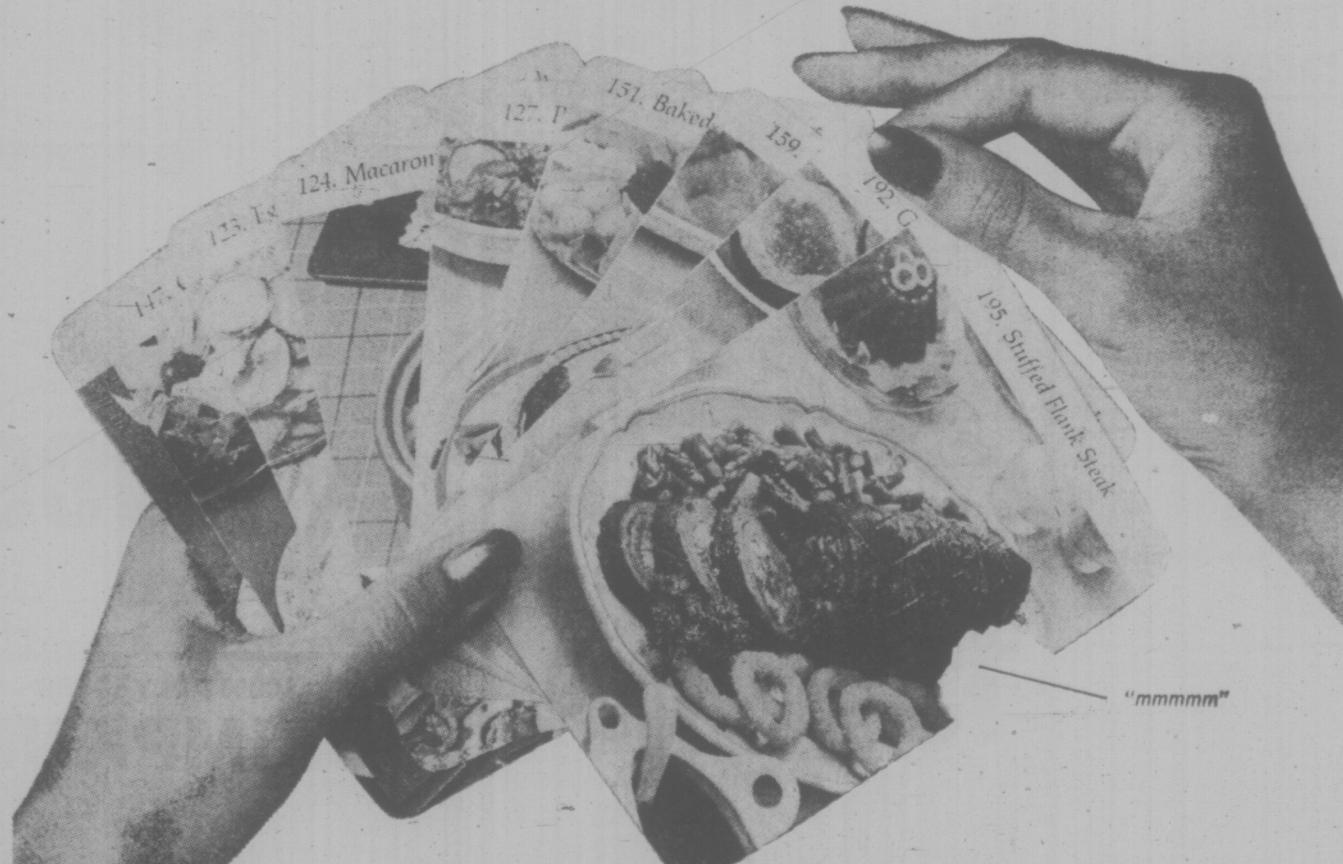

The agriculture department said the early frost would yield a corn crop 16 per cent below last year's — pointing to still higher meat prices in 1975 and 1976. The soybean crop was disappointing too.

The labor department said wholesale prices, which recently had been rising at an annual rate of 35 per cent, had virtually levelled off in September. The rise reported Thursday was one-tenth of 1 per cent.

Although last month's wholesale price increases was small, the over-all index was still 19.7 per cent above a

Analyst Rates Ford's Program Disappointing

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic program is more notable for its omissions than the ten points the President ticked off to "put our ... economic house in order."

For all the talk about the need to cut energy consumption, the President not only ducked the politically-sensitive issue of gasoline taxes, but shied away from mandatory conservation measures in favor of the same old batch of voluntary suggestions.

To raise revenues, the president failed to ask Congress to put some of the outrageous loopholes that favor special interests, but proposed to sock a 5 per cent tax surcharge on middle and upper income groups.

Thus, people who have been paying their fair share of taxes all along are asked to pay even more. That's not the right approach so long as the whole tax system is distorted by loopholes.

Moreover, there is considerable justification for the quickie judgment of a labor leader like Jerry Wurt, who says it looks as if Ford would tax the middle-class so as to provide a better investment credit for corporations.

The most serious omission of all is the absence of any plan to deal vigorously and directly with the key economic problem of the moment, the festering wage-price spiral.

As Ford surely must know, labor leaders who kept wage demands at a moderate level for a year or more, can no longer do so because of a raging price inflation.

The explosion in the cost of living, creating a double-digit pattern that will probably last into 1975, will force a new wage-price spiral unless something is done about it.

Yet, President Ford not only failed to equip his new Council on Wage and Price Stability with real powers or with suggested wage-price guidelines — he didn't even ask business and labor not to raise prices and wages to unconscionable levels.

The president apparently followed the advice of those like former Treasury Secretary George Shultz, who warned Ford at the summit meetings not to tinker in this area.

"This program," said the current secretary of the treasury, William Simon, "is aimed at minimizing government controls." So for the time being, ideology has won out again, and the public will suffer with high inflation rates. How long will the public be patient?

Having rejected the help of direct action in restraining wages and prices, the president could not take stimulative action to get the country moving out of recession. At least, the policy is consistent: Ford offers no dramatic initiatives against either the inflationary or the recessionary side, which means that the nation will continue to suffer from "stagflation."

The cost of this deficiency can be seen not only in the weak program of tax relief to the poor (most was already in the works via the House Ways and Means Committee), but in a pallid version of the Jacob Javits-Arthur Burns public service jobs proposals.

Is the Ford program a complete bust? I think not. The president at least recognized the complexity of the inflation-recession problem, one of the lessons of the summit. He laid stress on expanding new energy sources, and warned Detroit that it must produce more efficient cars.

He properly demanded a beefed-up anti-trust law, and paid lip service to doing away with Prof. Hendrick Houthakker's "sacred cows" that gouge consumers through antiquated Government regulations.

But most of these deal with problems in the long run, not the crucial questions of 1974, 1975 and 1976.

During the summit sessions, Economic Council Chairman Alan Greenspan, who pulls no punches in his economic analyses, said the economy would suffer higher unemployment and a no-growth pattern for a year. He warned that it would take up to three years to subdue inflation.

Former Economic Council chairman Walter Heller and his associate, George Perry, speak in the Minneapolis National City Bank letter of a 1974-75 "policy-induced recession" that will be the longest and most costly one we have suffered since the Great Depression.

Measured against economic problems of this magnitude, President Ford's program has to be rated a disappointment.

Glued-Beam Failures Threaten Ontario Buildings

TORONTO (CP) Some schools, churches and arenas are among at least 30 buildings in Ontario where wood beams and columns may be deteriorating because of failure of a glue bond, the technical standards division of Ontario's Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations announced Thursday.

The division said in a news release that all owners of affected buildings have been notified that glue-laminated parts produced by Gulam Products Ltd. of British Columbia between 1967 and 1971 show signs of increased rates of deterioration under high or fluctuating humidity.

Other manufacturers' glue-laminated parts are without this problem, the news release said.

Problems with the Gulam products were first found in 1972 and the Ontario government advised building owners to inspect beams and columns. The effect of humidity has just been discovered.

Rev. J. A. Goldsmith, pastor of Pineland Presbyterian Church, Burlington, one of three churches affected, said he got a letter and a telephone call from the ministry this week.

He said he was told an inspector would visit him in a month or six weeks.

Rev. Goldsmith said the beams inside the church show no sign of deterioration, although two that are under the eaves had to be repaired because the glue joints had broken down and the boards were warping away from one another.

He said provincial inspectors checked the beams about two years ago.

LIONS GIVE SERVICE

Esquimalt Lions Club members participated in a worldwide service day Tuesday by carrying out minor repairs at the Lions Lodge and entertaining the residents.

Twenty-eight club members gathered at the Fleming St. lodge for the work bee, and local Lionettes helped with entertainment in the lounge afterwards.

Tuesday marked Lions Service Day when club members throughout the world were asked to engage in some special service for their fellow men.

Elderly To Audit Classes

Senior citizens will be eligible to sit in on University of Victoria courses next year for free. UVic officials have decided.

A special classification for the student "listener" also allows any person under the age of 60 to audit classes on payment of a $20 registration fee.

Dr. M. J. Ashwood-Smith, who headed a special senate committee which made the recommendation, said Thursday any individual who receives permission from the department or division concerned, may register next year.

Listeners "may participate in a maximum six courses, but will not receive credit for any work undertaken."

An extra $20 will be charged, he said, if the course involves laboratory facilities.

N.I.P. Plan All-Inclusive

Prepaid Tax Incentive Up

To encourage more property owners to take advantage of its property tax prepayment plan, the city of Victoria is jacking up the interest rate offered by two per cent.

For years, residents have been able to pay up to 90 per cent of their property tax bill — due June 30 — during the period between Jan. 1 and April 30.

The advance payment applied against the bill accrued interest, but for a number of years the interest rate has remained static at six per cent, and city officials believe inflation-minded taxpayers have been finding the plan less and less attractive.

This year, for example, the city collected $840,000 in advance payments up to the end of April, whereas the figure last year was more than $1 million.

A bylaw giving first readings at the city council meeting Thursday will raise the interest rate from six to eight per cent.

An official in the comptroller's department said other core municipalities offer seven and a half per cent, "but are considering going to eight."

Much to the relief of community associations in James Bay and Victoria West, city council Thursday designated those entire areas as neighborhood improvement areas eligible for $2 million in federal N.I.P. funding.

The city's original intention was to select and concentrate on certain districts within the two neighborhood areas, mainly to avoid spreading the available cash too thinly and to ensure the best possible improvements.

This argument was based on the assumption that areas not tackled under the current program might well qualify in future years.

But the community associations strongly opposed the selective spending approach, pointing out that under N.I.P. rules, unless the entire areas were designated, many residents would be denied the loans and grants provided for rehabilitation of older homes.

James Bay N.I.P. coordinator Kay Lines said today every indication points to stringent federal economies ahead, which might well curtail the N.I.P. program or at least deny Victoria another opportunity.

"We all felt we should get the money while we can," she added.

The associations' suggested lists of priorities under the program are included in a detailed report which the planning department is preparing for city council.

Faculty Funds Screened

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

University of Victoria Faculty Club directors are under special scrutiny from provincial government auditors because of "inadequate accounting procedures."

Club director Bill Pfaffenberger said today he received a reprimand from the province's controller general's department for "the absence of adequate control of revenue."

The letter said auditors were "unable to express an opinion on the finances of the club" and further review will continue.

Pfaffenberger said there had been no change in accounting procedures during the last six years.

He said the department was "questioning the accounting procedures, not the figures in the books" and problems arose this year only because "the department sent a different person than has normally audited the books."

He said the directors had been asked by club members if there was any money not reported in the statements, and the "only thing we didn't put down was $1,500 gratuity donated by members individually to the staff at Christmas."

"It wasn't revenue or an expense so we didn't list it."

Because the club is listed as a society under the B.C. Societies' Act, it is eligible for auditing by the province, he said.

All members of the club, which has a budget of $104,900 this year, will receive a report on the matter when further information is provided by the provincial auditors.

Pfaffenberger predicted the club will probably have to change its accounting procedures and if the department actually insists we might have to start a duplication billing system" to satisfy the department.

Members have been designated to check their own accounts, he said.

Loitering, Littering Protested by Banker

... even set bonfires

their pigeon perches," and although patrolling police remove them it has no permanent effect.

Recently one group built a bonfire up against one of the window frames," which was discovered and reported to the bank management by window-cleaning personnel.

The bank manager argues that his is the only building in the block "prejudicially discriminated against in this manner," and says the result of a "test run" agreed a year ago with city and transit authorities is totally unsatisfactory.

"The 'trial' period is over and the situation remains unkempt, obstructive, a denial of ethical privilege and prejudicial to business," he says about the request for remedial action.

But Baines' reference to a test period today had both Hood and city traffic engineer Dave Campbell puzzled. Neither was aware of any such agreement, although Hood noted he wasn't chairman of the traffic committee a year ago.

Hood said the only practical long-term solution may lie in the provincial government's promised overhaul of the city transportation system, which might relieve some of the congestion at the Douglas-Yates site.

Campbell said he could think of no other more suitable location for a main bus stop and downtown transfer point.

Group Planned to Smooth Stroke Victims' Recovery

An organizational meeting will be held later this month to launch a society of victims.

Like the Open Heart Society which originated in Victoria, it will aim at smoothing the road to recovery.

Mrs. Corinne Tench, 1298 Camrose Cres., said today the meeting will be held at the YM-YWCA Oct. 25 at 7:30 p.m. and people, particularly stroke victims, who are ready to help are welcome.

Mrs. Tench, 42, is former head nurse of the coronary care unit at Victoria General Hospital. Almost two years ago she suffered an attack which left her completely paralysed.

Since then she has recovered use of her left side and can walk a little with a leg brace.

In a Times article six weeks ago she described how she had found no co-ordinated program for helping stroke victims and their families during lengthy recovery periods.

Most stroke victims, and family or friends trying to care for them, don't know what to expect or what's available, she said.

Examples: not even the victims know depression, withdrawal and crying jags are common problems and to be expected.

She said many people have responded to the newspaper article but attendance by others ready to work would be appreciated at the meeting in two weeks.

FIRST HOPEFUL

Zap: Ailments Found With Gamma Camera

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Royal Jubilee Hospital has added a $118,000 gamma camera to the weaponry it uses in probing for trouble—and depending on what you feel a life is worth, it's already paid for itself.

The camera, which has just gone into use after some teething problems, produces moving or still pictures of blood flow through brain, heart, lungs, liver, spleen, kidneys or placenta by recording the passage of minute quantities of radioactive material injected into the bloodstream of a patient.

It's a painless and swift procedure, linked to a futuristic data system housing a computer and alive with lighted switches, spinning tape and a TV monitor which will replay flow studies in slow motion, stop the action, measure flow and vary intensity of the image.

The camera operates from the basement of the Richmond Pavilion where the hospital's department of nuclear medicine is located.

Dr. A. G. Richards, head of the service, said Thursday it was used recently on a man who had been in an accident and complained of a slight headache and a little double vision.

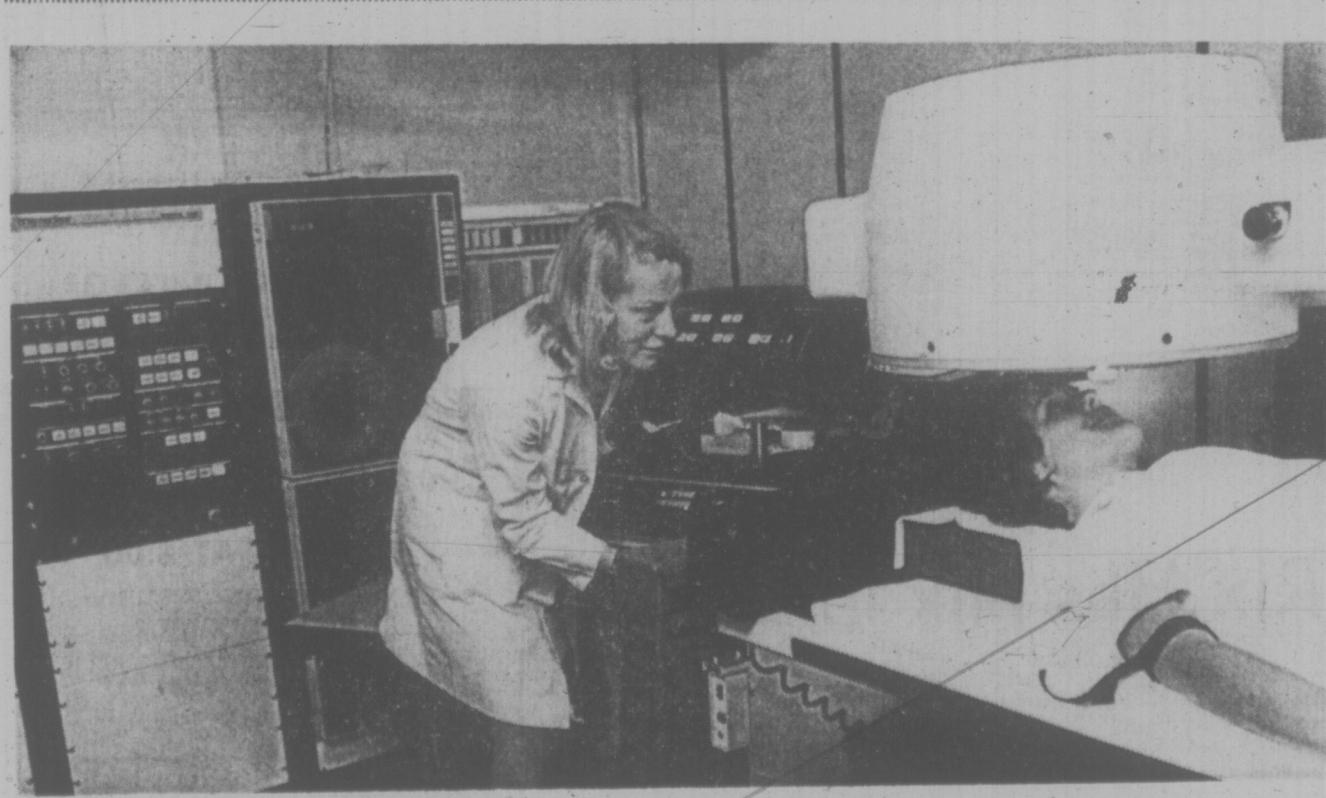

A brain scan quickly and clearly revealed a blood clot and an operation which saved the man's life was under way within hours.

The flow studies give useful information which can't be gathered any other way, Richards said. The camera, which can also take skeletal pictures, will reveal bone cancer, for example, long before it appears on any x-ray plate.

When a skeletal picture is sought, the injection is a minute quantity of radioactive phosphorus which bodily functions naturally draw to the site of the bone problem. On the TV screen, the trouble spot glows like a beacon.

In fact, the gamma camera technique relies on the body's organs doing what comes naturally. The liver and spleen, for example, screen any foreign material from the bloodstream and so gather up the injected material, letting the camera measure the gamma rays it emits and make a picture.

The minute quantities of radioactive material used are harmless, have a short life-span and are naturally excreted by the body.

BASEBALL BOOTS CFL OFF SCREEN

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC television network announced Thursday it will delay the broadcast of Saturday's Canadian Football League game in Ottawa in favor of showing the first game of baseball's world series.

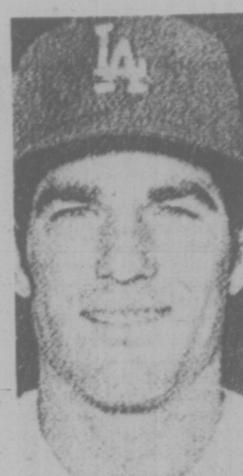

The Ottawa CFL game, with Winnipeg Blue Bombers visiting the Rough Riders, is scheduled for 11 a.m. PDT and would be over about 1:30 p.m.

The CBC had considered canceling the football telecast but decided Thursday that it will be broadcast on a delayed basis beginning at 8:40 p.m. PDT Saturday.

The baseball game begins at 1 p.m. PDT.

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, said the decision to give American baseball priority over Canadian football was indefensible and added that the baseball game would be shown on American NBC channels available in most major Canadian cities.

The Numbers Game: Let's Get Mystical

Well, I see where Jack Scott, when he wins his packet, is off on a world cruise or, if not the full gamut, a trip to anywhere and back on a slow, slow freighter.

It isn't any secret that almost everyone else would like to say "me, too." Why the heck not, it might just happen.

People will try anything to get a windfall. And now governments are getting in on the gravy and making sweepstakes of all kinds, fair game even if they can't agree why some are officially legal and others not.

However, who cares, especially if the money is there? And because people are basically superstitious to a certain extent, maybe that's the bag of tricks that should be explored in search of a winner. It takes no longer than dreaming of that moonlight cruise through the Caribbean to learn of some of the science of numerology, today's numbers game.

But first, remember, this is not to be construed as an invitation to gamble, or to invest in a sweep ticket of any sort. Heavens, no! Now for the figure filters.

It can be recalled when racing at Sandown was a part of the local scene, one way to beat the horses was to stay at home, another was to bet the system. And in one case the system worked, right from the first flagfall to the final finish. And one happy duo, who would prefer not to be identified, once hit it for a profit.

Their method was ridiculously simple. They had charted previous Sandown meets and found that No. 2 was the post position which produced most winners in the money and more winners, too. So basing their system on No. 2, and picking their spots — Bingo! It worked — beautifully. Of course, at Sandown, it was easier, because at the tail end of the season there often wasn't a full field, the fewer starters the better the odds, and on a bull-track the inside horse, if it has any speed at all, has the edge; and if they didn't exactly win a retirement fund, they had ample spending money for the winter.

From the Mysterious Past

Not true numerology? Well, maybe not. But people do believe in special numbers — their marriage licence, age, phone number, house address, car licence, the cute little number at the office — and how often have they used that system to pick out a ticket. Almost always.

Then of course, there are the mystical numbers from ages past. Maybe they will make you a winner or at least a believer.

For example:

THREE — Three cheers — faith, hope and charity, the three graces ... third time lucky.

FIVE — The five fingers on each hand ... the five toes on each foot ... the five senses of man, sight, hearing, taste, smell, touch ...

SEVEN — This has to be the most popular of all mystics ... the game of dice ... seven come 11, seven days of the week ... seven wonders of the world ... the seven colors of the rainbow ... and "seventh heaven" wherever that is?

HOW ABOUT TWELVE — The hours on a clock ... the months in a year ... the 12 apostles ... the 12 signs of the Zodiac ... does it have some special power?

TWENTY-ONE — This has its favorites, too ... the coming of age (sorry all 19-year-olds) ... a 21-gun salute ... and if you multiply 3x7, guess what you get?

Anyhow, sometimes it all works.

So Who Needs Skill?

There was that great grandmother in Britain who really put it together for a $130,000 packet in Vernon's Soccer Pools. You know how? She used the ages of her four children, nine grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren for the 19 selections on her perm. Oh yes, she was 73, which is double lucky anyway!

Then there was another fellow who picked his selections from a toy roulette wheel, filled in the coupon and received a cheque for around $300,000.

Yet another big winner, $280,000 worth, used passing train numbers as his system.

You can safely say they all believed in numbers.

Simply put, then, the easy way is to use all the mystical numbers possible, your own private picks, and not rely on the skill of some mathematical wizard who knows how to read a racing form but doesn't know how to apply it and, if he did, the boy up would probably fall off in the stretch. So now you get the idea, Jack.

And hey! Maybe next time we could use some of that numerology stuff, group together any two or five lines of five, perm any eight from 10 at 8:10 goes a penny, and get the whole entry for only 36 cents.

Perhaps we could pop the pools that way. If we did, then we'd be in that "seventh heaven."

See you on shipboard, mate.

Sinden's Goaltending Gets Nixons on Board

Roy Sinden came up with a solid display in goal and Larry Hansen scored two goals to help spark Victoria Nixons to their first victory in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League Thursday.

Nixons defeated Esquimalt 6-4 at the Sports Centre.

GARY GOES GREAT IN RAIN

VEGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa played two great rounds of golf through the pines on Wentworth's rain-lashed Burma Road course Thursday to send young American Ben Crenshaw sliding 4 of the $72,000 Piccadilly Wild Match Play champion.

Player, seeking his sixth

Piccadilly title in 11 years, won 4 and 3 in a 36-hole first-round match.

Joining the South African as first-round winners in the eight-man tournament were Americans Jerry Heard and Hale Irwin and Britisher Tony Jacklin.

Heard beat veteran Australian Graham Marsh 2 and 1. Irwin, the U.S. Open champion, made a late charge and defeated left-hander Bob Charles of New Zealand 4 and 2. Jacklin crushed lanky Peter Oosterhuis 7 and 6 in an all-British match.

In today's semi-finals it will be Heard against Player and Irwin against Jacklin.

"It was difficult playing golf because there was so much water on the greens," said the 38-year-old Player.

Yet Player collected seven birdies on the back nine of the morning round and finished eight under par for 33 holes.

Heavy rain swept across the 6,997-yard, par-73 course at the start of the day, and Player took a while to reach his top form. He and Crenshaw both made the turn in the morning round at two-over par.

"It was difficult playing golf because there was so much water on the greens," said the 38-year-old Player.

Soccer Stars Play Monday

Fans will get a chance to see the cream of the Vancouver Island Soccer League's Premier Division in action next Monday, Thanksgiving Day, at 2:15 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park.

That's when the Island League All-Stars take on Braden Red Shirts, champions last season of the Fraser Valley Soccer League.

The Fraser Vale team has an excellent playing record and boasts a first-class goalkeeper in six-foot-three Bill Fehr and a star inside-left in Gerry Larsen.

Island selectors, because it is so early in the season, have played it safe by naming two players from each of the 10 clubs in the premier division to the 20-man all-star squad.

The Island squad is: Mark Robb and Mike Sails (UVic Vikings); Peter Saunders and Steve Bowers (Oak Bay); Ray Telford and Ike MacKay (Nanaimo); Kjeld Brosgaard and Dean Stokes (London Boxing Club); Ralph Storey and Barry Hilton (George); Dave Achurch and Tom Watson (Duncan Village Green); Larry Louie and George Hyne (Cosmopolitan Royals); Robbie Williams and Dave Gras (Vic West); Mike Berryman and Tom Saunders (Prospect Lake).

Cliff Newman is the manager and Arthur Rostrom the coach.

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell says she feels sympathy for former president Nixon and took no pleasure in his political fall.

Robert Havel, a public information officer, said no picture could be taken because it had been decided Mrs. Saxbe could no longer use the range. Neither Saxbe nor Dolly could be reached for comment.

Road Toll Staggering

WINNIPEG (CP) — Highways Minister Peter Burtinak has announced there was a staggering 25 per cent increase in the number of highway traffic fatalities in Manitoba during 1973.

Ford Sounds Death Knell

DETROIT (UPI) — President Ford Thursday said the Republican Party is in danger of extinction and asked the voters to save it on election day.

A catastrophic defeat as some forecasters are predicting for the Republican Party could write the obituary of the GOP. Ford told 4,000 republicans who had each $50 tickets to a fund-raising dinner.

Although he indicated he did not really believe the GOP would be wiped out at the polls Nov. 5, Ford expressed a deep concern about the growing trend of political independents in the U.S.

McLEAN, Va. — Mrs. Joan Kennedy must appear in traffic court Nov. 6 to answer drunk driving charges, but she will probably be allowed to plead guilty to a reduced charge and take part in an experimental program for drinking drivers. Attorney William Bechtold said after the court date was set Thursday that conviction on the misdemeanor charge of driving under the influence of alcohol carries a maximum penalty of 12 months in jail and a $1,000 fine along with loss of driver's licence for six months to a year.

BERLIN — Jewish historian Joseph Wulf, who chronicled Nazi persecutions and Third Reich art, leaped to his death Thursday from his West Berlin apartment, police said. They said Wulf, 61, was suffering from mental depression. Wulf was best known for a series of books on art, music, literature, theatre and mass media during the Third Reich. He also published works on Nazi leaders and persecution of Jews.

TORONTO — Reader's Digest Association Canada Ltd. has no intention of vacating "Canada under any foreseeable conditions," its president said Thursday. Paul Zimmerman said his publication has nothing to fear from the federal government which has asked both Reader's Digest and Time Canada to demonstrate they "serve the Canadian purpose" and should continue to receive tax concessions for their advertisers. The Canadian edition is published in both of Canada's official languages, he said, and "every word of its contents is edited by a Canadian editorial team for its relevance to Canadian readers."

WASHINGTON — Representative Wilbur Mills has described himself as embarrassed and humiliated by his involvement in an episode during which a woman jumped into the Washington Tidal Basin. He says he is returning to work at the Capitol and then will resume his re-election campaign. The Arkansas Democrat, 65-year-old chairman of the House ways and means committee and long considered one of the most-powerful members of Congress, has not been seen on Capitol Hill this week.

PARIS — Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, 47, wife of the Greek shipbuilder and former wife of Greek millionaire Aristotle Onassis, was found dead in her Paris apartment today. A friend of the family gave no details.

THIBODAUX, La. — Radio announcer Bob Borne said Thursday he stretched a wad of bubble gum 235 feet, 3 inches after accidentally sticking his elbow in it. "It appears to be the longest thing I've ever stuck to in my life," Borne said. "I walked around the station and it followed me."

THIBODAUX, La. — Radio announcer Bob Borne said Thursday he stretched a wad of bubble gum 235 feet, 3 inches after accidentally sticking his elbow in it. "It appears to be the longest thing I've ever stuck to in my life," Borne said. "I walked around the station and it followed me."

WASHINGTON — Representative Wilbur Mills has described himself as embarrassed and humiliated by his involvement in an episode during which a woman jumped into the Washington Tidal Basin. He says he is returning to work at the Capitol and then will resume his re-election campaign. The Arkansas Democrat, 65-year-old chairman of the House ways and means committee and long considered one of the most-powerful members of Congress, has not been seen on Capitol Hill this week.

PARIS — Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, 47, wife of the Greek shipbuilder and former wife of Greek millionaire Aristotle Onassis, was found dead in her Paris apartment today. A friend of the family gave no details.

BOND SALES UP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Purchase of the new issue of Canada Savings Bonds by payroll deduction by workers in British Columbia is running well ahead of last year's record level, the B.C.-Yukon regional director of the payroll savings plan a campaign reported today.

George Sherwood, vice-chairman of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, said the average application to purchase a Canada Savings Bond through payroll deduction in B.C. last year was $643.03, a provincial record, compared with a Canadian average of $546.08.

"It was $588.88 at the end of the B.C. campaign two years ago," he said. "This year so far we are averaging $688."

Personal savings deposits in Canada's chartered banks totalled $30 billion, up $7 billion from this time last year, he noted.

The new 1974-75 series, which pay a record yield of 9½ per cent per annum, went on sale Sept. 30.

Canada Council's Arty Bill $44.3 Million

The Canada Council spent $44.3 million during 1973-74, according to the secretary of state's annual report.

This was an increase of $6.3 million over the previous year. Council's budget for the current year is $49.7 million.

"More than ever before...

new and good things are happening in the arts across the country," says the report. "This constant growth of artistic activity has done much to make a better and more expensive life among Canadians."

During the year council aid to artists and arts organizations was divided as follows: music and opera, $4,803,000; dance, $2,188,000; theatre, $7,572,000; visual arts, $2,693,000; video, film and photography, $1,039,000; writing and publication, $2,691,000. A full chapter of the report is devoted to the Art Bank which was established two years ago. At last inventory, the bank's holdings consisted of about 4,500 works by contemporary Canadian artists. The works are offered on a rental basis for display in federal offices.

In the social sciences, council underscores the importance of fundamental research. In 1973-74 the work of 929 researchers was supported at a cost of $4,862,000.

In addition, awarded 1,722 doctoral fellowships, 366 leave and research fellowships and 100 MA fellowships, for a total of $12,827,000, and spent nearly $3 million on research communications.

The report expresses concern over the inadequacy of funds available to researchers in the social sciences suggests that steps be taken during the next few years to correct "the disparity between what is spent on the humanities and social sciences and what is spent on the other sciences."

Presbyterian Reminiscences

Victoria's Judge J. B. Clearihue calls himself "a relic of the Presbyterian past" of the Oak Bay United Church which is celebrating its 60th anniversary in November.

"The reason why I am a relic is that I went to the Sunday School of the old St. Columba Presbyterian Church," the presbyterian side of Oak Bay United, he said.

He'll tell about it on Nov. 19, as guest speaker at an anniversary dinner in the church at 6:30 p.m.

The judge was a member of the B.C. legislature when the legislation for church union of St. Columba Presbyterian and Hampshire Road Methodist churches was passed.

The union was effected less than a year after the union of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches throughout Canada.

An anniversary church service will be held Nov. 17.

IT'S SURVIVAL OF THE FIERCEST. AND THE FUNNIEST.

"THE LONGEST YARD" is a movie that cracks a lot of jokes. And a lot of bones. Burt Reynolds stars — tough, sassy — and always that fire.

Reynolds is at his most virile. The wrath of a woman scorned starts his trouble. However, he's got some wrath of his own. And the last 45 minutes of the film is unlike anything you have ever seen. It will have you howling and cheering like no movie ever has.

"THE LONGEST YARD" is about life. And it's about fighting back. It's about good over evil. And about laughing uproariously at them both.

"THE LONGEST YARD" is a fierce, funny movie. For men, for women, for everyone.

Forensic Science 'On Shoestring'

OTTAWA (CP) — Forensic scientists helped convict a murderer in New Brunswick by tracing a tiny bee's hair found on the accused to a species of dead bees at the scene of the crime.

They proved that a single leg bone with a mended fracture found on the shores of Lake Winnipeg belonged to a missing victim of a helicopter crash several months earlier.

They helped convict a murderer and rapist in Alberta by comparing the impression made by the accused's teeth with bite marks found on his victim.

These and other crimes and mysteries solved by the country's forensic scientists indicate their valuable, unsung role, but all is not happy within the profession, Dr. Harry Emsom of Saskatoon, president of the Canadian Society of Forensic Science, said Thursday.

Overwork, lack of funding and training, and an inefficient court system are making it tough for forensic scientists to keep up with the bad guys, Dr. Emsom said in an interview at the society's annual meeting.

Federal and provincial support "is a drop in the bucket" when compared with the money spent on the country's police, judicial and prison systems, he said.

The profession "is run on a shoestring," preventing the scientists from doing more and better work to fight crime, said Dr. Emsom, a forensic pathologist.

There are 10 forensic laboratories in Canada, one each in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver and seven regional RCMP crime detection centres.

Dr. Emsom, a lecturer in medicine and law at the University of Saskatchewan, also said the court system "has all the efficiency of a Red River cart."

Emphasizing that he was expressing his opinion and not necessarily that of the society, he said the country needs a legal system that functions conveniently for people, not for lawyers as is now the case.

Valuable time of forensic scientists was wasted when they were called to testify in court without subsequently being heard, and while they had to wait long hours while lawyers argued the fine points of a case.

Recently, he and an assistant had spent two days tra-

MENTAL FILE SOUGHT

Health Minister Dennis Cooke has asked for a complete report from Riverview Mental Hospital in the case of a man alleged to have committed a murder two days after being discharged from the hospital.

Cooke said Thursday that he expects a copy of the hospital assessment report on Rodney Kirkpatrick, 25, of Barrie, Ont., and an interpretation of that report from the hospital's professional staff. The assessment report was the basis for Kirkpatrick's discharge.

The minister said a preliminary report from the hospital did not show any wrongdoing or negligence. Hospital records show that while in Riverview for a week, Kirkpatrick was "found to be not dangerous to himself or others or whatever basis they decide those things on," said Cooke.

On July 29, Kirkpatrick was arrested in Bella Coola and sent to Oakalla Jail in Burnaby for psychiatric examination. He was found unfit by reason of insanity to stand trial and was committed to Riverview Aug. 22.

He was discharged from the hospital Aug. 29. A week later he was charged with murder after Stephen Howard Hynes, 22, of Denver, Colo., who was robbed and murdered Aug. 31 in Yoho National Park, near the Alberta-B.C. boundary.

Kirkpatrick was found unfit to stand trial for the murder by reason of insanity and was again committed to Riverview.

Cooke said that because of the method by which the man was committed, the cabinet did not have to pass a special order to have him discharged as it does in some cases where persons are committed to Riverview by the courts. He said it was entirely a hospital decision to release Kirkpatrick.

Riverview director Dr. J. C. Johnston confirmed that Kirkpatrick had been committed Aug. 22 and discharged with all conditions Aug. 29 but refused further comment.

ANGELS GET SCOTT

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels of the American Baseball League have purchased the contract of left-handed relief pitcher Mickey Scott from Rochester of the International League.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An employee of a local jewellery store was remanded for sentencing in provincial court Thursday to Oct. 17 for stealing $6,290 from the store.

Alan Tunmon, 28, of 3159 Shelburne, pleaded guilty to three charges of theft from Peels Jewellers.

Tunmon sold goods at the store then rang up refunds and took the refund money from the till.

The offences occurred between January and September.

Defence lawyer Brian Smith said Tunmon had been visiting his mother in Winnipeg when advised police were looking for him.

After returning to Victoria, Smith said, Tunmon assisted police by revealing additional shortages of money.

A 16-year-old was given a six-month jail term and 18 months probation for breaking into Fibre Sound Shop, 1319 Broad, on Sept. 14.

Leslie Wayde Morgan, of no fixed address, was found guilty Sept. 26 of stealing four radios from the store.

After noting that turning to crime is no solution for a person too proud to accept welfare, Judge William Ostler bade a 58-year-old man $200 on each of two theft offences.

Gordon William Hill, 724 Yates, pleaded guilty earlier.

Hill, who did not want to accept welfare after he became unemployed, told the court he stole because he needed money to live on.

Hill was remanded to Oct. 22 for sentencing.

The stolen goods — composed mostly of business equipment, tools and furniture — was found between July 11 and July 16 in the living room of Dobie's residence and in a shed.

Defence lawyer Gordon Macdonald said Dobie told police the stolen property was received from a friend.

In declining to give Hill a jail sentence, Ostler said, the "best solution is to give you an opportunity to do what you want to do."

Robert Andrew David Henderson, 17, of 902 Esquimalt, received a suspended sentence and was put on probation for six months for breaking into two vehicles and committing theft.

Henderson earlier pleaded guilty to stealing seven eight-track tapes worth $60 from a car parked in the 1000-block Cook Aug. 12, and the following day, stealing a tool box and tools valued at $175 from Holly Ann Dyrland, 17, also of 214 Russel, was remanded to Oct. 22 on charges of possessing stolen property.

Two other persons from the same address charged with possessing stolen property to appear in court. Warrants were issued for the arrest of John Mazzocca, 26, and Victoria Westrop, 22.

Britannia Unwanted By Lauk

Provincial government take-over of operations at Britannia Beach copper mine is unlikely, Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk said Thursday.

Lauk said, however, a meeting to discuss Britannia's future is being arranged between local members of the United Steelworkers of America and the cabinet, but no time for the talks has been set.

The union requested a meeting after the announcement Monday that the New-York based Anaconda Co. is closing its Britannia operations Nov. 1, putting about 300 men out of work.

Lauk would not disclose what alternatives might be open to the government but, when pressed on the point, he agreed a take-over "on its own" was unlikely.

The minister said earlier he had ordered an investigation into the closure as a "priority item" in his department.

Those preliminary investigations have shown that the operations were no longer viable and it was just a matter of time before the mine closed, said Lauk.

Bill 31, the government's contentious new mineral royalty legislation, would not have had an effect on the operations, he said, because the massive super-royalty only comes into effect when copper prices are high.

Company spokesman said Bill 31 was a secondary reason for the closure but the major reasons were limited ore reserves, rising costs and reduced prices on the world copper market.

Wallace Accepts Levi's Silence

Conservative leader Scott Wallace says he is satisfied Human Resources Minister Norm Levi cannot make any public statements on the tragic deaths of three children in B.C. recently.

Levi told the Tory leader he could not comment on the cases since all three are now before the courts.

Wallace had called for a full explanation of the role of the human resources department in the deaths of 2-year-old Yehudi Prior near Shawinigan Lake, a 6-year-old boy alleged to have died as the result of a beating and a 16-month-old boy thought to have been thrown off a B.C. Ferry.

NOW HERE'S
"THE CLINCHER!"
New 12 month unlimited mileage warranty
It's going to take better care of the people who buy our cars.

For the first 12 months of use, any Chrysler Canada Ltd. dealer will fix without charge for parts and labour, any part of our 1975 passenger cars we supply (except tires, which are covered by the people who make them) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage.

Special policies and programs include the replacement of selected items such as brake linings, shock absorbers, tail-pipes and mufflers should they wear out in normal use during the first twelve months. Participating dealers will supply a loaner free of charge.

The warranty period for police cars and taxis is twelve months or twelve thousand miles whichever occurs first.

Salon Keeps Big Wheels Beautiful

By LIZA BERCOVICI

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (NYT) — What Sassoon is to hair, what Elizabeth Arden is to faces, Ken Young is to cars.

Young operates The Pyramid, "The beauty salon for cars" he calls it, just two blocks outside Beverly Hills' city limits.

Young rarely charges less than $65 for his five-hour beauty treatment. Depending on the work involved, he may charge a customer $150, sometimes more.

But in Beverly Hills, the automobile is a pre-eminent status symbol. Burt Sugarman, the rock producer, for instance, plunks down $275 for Young's special beauty treatment for any one of his 18 cars, including his expensive Duesenberg and the Rolls.

Just 18 months ago, Young emerged on the local car-cleaning scene. Only a year ago, he had no assistants and was cleaning just three or four cars a day. But today, thanks to some helpful publicity and show business friends, 300 customers roll in faster than Young and his four-man crew can wax, polish, glaze, shampoo and vacuum.

"Boy, what a madhouse," he murmured as a customer drove up in a gold Cadillac to leave for the treatment.

The idea blossomed when Young, who worked for an educational management firm, saw a car cleaner at work in a garage used by executives of Motown Records, where Young's wife was working as a stenographer.

"I saw there was a tremendous amount of money that could be made of a first-class car operation," he explained, adding that he set about to learn the business' first practices of his own white '67 Oldsmobile, then joining a Hollywood Ferrari dealership, and finally opening his own car-cleaning operation in Glendale.

In 10 months, the business failed. "It was the wrong location. I got only dealership cars, new unused cars," he said, noting the beauties of the Hollywood jet set.

But, recovering in Beverly Hills, he began, luring the city's celebrities to his establishment: Jerry Lewis, the Comedian (72), Sammy Davis, Jr., the singer ('73 Maserati), Rona Barrett, the columnist ('72 Rolls), Paul Williams, the composer ('71 Mercedes), and Dean Martin, the singer ('73 Rolls, '74 Jaguar).

Following the elaborate cleaning, "the car comes out smooth as glass and clear as the noon-day sun," says Young in describing the treatment.

First the car is washed, then "cut" — or machine-buffed — to remove the dirt, grime and oxidation that exposure to photochemical smog produces on California cars. Then the pores of the paint are resealed and the car is waxed with a special kind of $245-a-case wax, Young says.

"No names. It's my trade secret." Young says of his wax. Then the wax is removed by hand, the car is glazed by machine, and the car is cleaned of swirl marks by a special swirl-removing machine.

The white walls are cleaned, the tires are "dressed" — blackened — the carpets are shampooed and the chrome is polished. The leather upholstery is dressed with a soft cream paste, from Rolls Royce.

"It gives your leather a nice sheen and also preserves expensive leather," said Young. A toothbrush is used to remove wax from the cracks and crevices of the car. The TV set, the phone, the refrigerator and the bar — accessories that these cars are likely to have — are cleaned. When the beauty treatment is over, the car seems immaculate from the tailpipe to the front grille.

Young is prepared to handle any make of car, but few Vws, Chevys or Pintos find their way to his garage. Four out of every five cars cleaned are Rolls, with Mercedes, Jaguars and Cadillacs, in that order, accounting for most of the others.

"It's kind of surprising and fantastic to me," said Young, musing on his success. "Guys have always been in the polishing and waxing business. The biggest reason for my success is my desire to do first-class work. When I'm satisfied with a car, the customer is satisfied."

OTTAWA (CP) — Changing public attitudes are speeding progress towards full equality for women, members of the federal advisory council on the status of women told a news conference here.

As recently as four years ago, many women were antagonistic to the women's movement, said Joan Wallace, the council's Vancouver representative.

Today, these same women were beginning to embrace changes to put them on equal footing with men in all sectors of society, she added. But many still shied away from the blanket term "women's liberation."

This perhaps resulted from the poor image of the women's movement created by the news media. It had tended to focus on militant factions and ignore "middle-of-the-road" groups such as the status of women council.

Coverage of women's issues had improved but much material still was relegated to daytime women's programs on television or the "women's pages" of newspapers. It should be treated as general news, members of the council — statutes containing discriminatory measures was an example of the government's good intentions.

The proposed legislation — which would effect changes in the Canada Elections Act, the Criminal Code, the Immigration Act, the Public Service Employment Act, the Pension Act, the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act, the National Defence Act and the Unemployment Insurance Act — died on the order paper when Parliament was dissolved last May. It was reintroduced in the Commons Tuesday.

"But we have to keep up the pressure," Cooke added.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

Free Gift Offers Often Cost More

By LYNNE GORDON

There are so many ways you can be "baited" with supposed free gift offers.

Have you ever received a mimeographed letter in the mail? It says, "Congratulations! Your entry form has just been drawn for a second prize." Not only are you eligible for a prize, the letter says, but you also receive a check for $80, to buy some merchandise.

It looks alright, but look closer, the "check" is really just a merchandise voucher and in fine print you find its only a credit to be applied towards merchandise.

If you read more carefully, you'll also find that it only applies to specified merchandise in the shop and they may be selling stereos or sewing machines. And if you still fall for the come-on, when you get in the store, you'll find, first of all, the free gift is a package of sewing needles or an old record.

Now, try to use your merchandise check.

The special machine you can buy with that $80 probably costs about $120 and even with the $80 off, you are getting stung. If you have taken time to compare shop, you probably could have bought the same machine in another store for $50 without a voucher.

But the salesman really isn't interested in having you buy the machine with the voucher.

Once he has you in the store, he'll try to switch you to higher priced merchandise. He'll give you a line that the "special" merchandise is too cheap for someone with your taste. It will probably fall apart, after too much use and he convinces you to switch to a more expensive model.

The best thing you could have done in that case, is never to have gone to the store at all.

Nobel Winner Dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Henry Joel Cadbury, 90, a Bible scholar and humanitarian who accepted the Nobel peace prize in borrowed clothes has died. Cadbury, a Quaker educationist, won the 1947 Nobel peace prize for his creation of the American Friends Service Committee in 1917.

Ingledew's

for the great names in fashion

IN VICTORIA — 749 YATES ST.

DEAR ABBY: I dropped out of high school to be married. I am now 30, divorced, and have three children. We are totally dependent on welfare.

Dilemma of a Lady Of Inedible Letters

If I went to work I could earn $1.90 an hour as a motel maid, but here is my dilemma: I attend (but am not enrolled in) the poetry workshops of two colleges in my city. My teachers say I am very talented, and they urge me to stay with writing poetry. I have been published in some of the best literary magazines in the nation, and have had some very encouraging letters from editors, although they haven't paid me anything. My ambition is to become a major poet.

I have spent two years in therapy, but I can't psychanalyse away my need to write poetry.

Now I must make a choice between my children's physical needs and my family's calls my "selfish ambition."

I welcome your advice. — Poor, Scorned and Torn.

DEAR P., S., and T.: Since you are able to work I think you should get off welfare. Thus far your poetry has netted you only non-edible letters of encouragement. I advise you to get a paying job, and write poetry in your spare time.

DEAR ABBY: I am interested in the strange case of the woman who went to confession and was upset by the priest who confessed his own troubles to her. Even stranger was your advice that the priest should see a doctor!

So here's the situation: If a woman confesses to a priest, she's religious; but if a priest confesses to a woman, he's sick.

My God, Anny, if that's the best you can do, you should quit.

DEAR INF.: The priest didn't merely "confess" to a woman — he broke down and wept — and to a parishioner who had come to him to confess yet. (This is healthy?)

True, another priest might have relieved the first priest's guilt by hearing his confession, but only a doctor can diagnose and treat one for an emotional disturbance, which appears to be the case here.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

All of us who are interested in the many varieties of human beings like to read about those persons who grow to be exceptionally tall or those who remain exceptionally small. One of the most unusual "little people" was a man named Tom Thumb, who was hired by P. T. Barnum, the great circus man, and went touring the country.

There is a splendid story about Tom Thumb and his two-foot, eight-inch bride, Lavinia Warren, in the "Smithsonian" magazine (Sept. 1973), written by Theodore James Jr. There is a photograph of their wedding, on February 10, 1863 — an event which made the headlines, at the time when the Civil War was raging, and Abraham Lincoln was president.

The picture shows a handsome groom and his lovely bride. It also shows a well-formed Commodore Nutt, the bridegroom's rival in love for Lavinia and the best man at the Wedding, and Lavinia's little sister, Minnie Bump, as the bridesmaid.

Tom weighed over nine pounds when he was born to his normal sized parents in 1838, but by the time he was a year old he showed signs of not growing properly, and when he reached two feet, 11 inches he stopped growing altogether. He apparently had something wrong with his pituitary (growth) gland, and it did not produce enough growth hormone to cause him to grow to a normal size.

Some people confuse midgets (or "little people"), as they prefer to be called, with dwarfs. The achondroplastic dwarfs have normal upper bodies and heads, but their forearms and thighs are stunted, because their pituitary gland did not work properly. Tom and his bride were well proportioned and perfectly formed midgets, both under three feet tall.

There was tremendous excitement when Tom and Lavinia became engaged, and even a bigger storm of excitement when they were married. They had some 2,000 wedding guests — many of them famous, and another 15,000 would gladly have paid $75 a ticket to view the ceremony! One big journal said it was "the event of the century." Tom gave Lavinia a wedding present worth $10,000. President and Mrs. Lincoln gave them a reception at the White House.

Tom was already a wealthy man. He had amassed a fortune, he had a yacht, a stable of horses and carriages, and a mansion in Connecticut which was filled with furnishings that were his size. He had become a household word in America and Europe. A number of children's books were written about him, polkas were named after him, and he had been entertained by kings and queens.

In 1883, Tom died of a stroke, and later Lavinia married an Italian count who was also a midget. Tom and Lavinia never had any children, but Lavinia's sister Minnie gave birth to a normal-sized child and died during childbirth. It is interesting that when midgets do have children, they have normal-sized children. Lavinia died in 1918 at the age of 78.

BACRACHE WORRY

The ordinary bacrache of nervous, arthritic or rheumatic, tired persons, or of women who are menstruating or overweight and with fallen arches, will seldom anything to worry about.

In the worst cases, when a woman limps into the doctor's office with her body bent over to one side or the other, the main question is, "Does she have a ruptured intervertebral disc?" A disc is a little rubber-like pad that lies between each two vertebrae (the bones that make up the spine). Usually in the cases of a ruptured disc the pain came suddenly, perhaps while the person was lifting something. The disc broke and its contents slipped backward and pressed on a nerve. Often the pain will run down the back of the thigh, causing sciatica.

In the worst cases, the patient is more or less disabled. Examinations by a neurologist may show signs that a nerve coming out of the spine has been injured so that the muscle the nerve supplies is weak. An examination of spinal fluid removed by a needle may show signs of irritation in the spinal cavity, and an x-ray study made after air is injected may show rupture of a disc.

... And the Cat Came Back

TORONTO (CP) — When airlines decide to lay or special treatment for a passenger, they do it in style — even when the passenger is a stray cat.

The cat had the good sense to get itself lost during a stopover at Toronto International Airport on its way from Frankfurt to Rio de Janeiro and touched off a week-long search by baggage personnel.

"It was discovered that it had been hiding in the conveyor belt system and was being fed meat and milk by a mechanic," said Joseph Camilleri, Air Canada's baggage supervisor at Toronto.

"When the cat was found, a veterinarian examined it and diagnosed a heart condition. So we flew it first class to South America.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
Forecast for Sat., Oct. 12

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

If you expect a clear freeway now you are sadly mistaken. You will be running an obstacle course. Older persons will be envious and cantankerous. Your own disposition will be anything but sweet and lovely. Get some rest. You may need to change your mind. Don't give up something for nothing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 18):

You seem to send "body signals." People know what you want and they knock themselves out trying to get it for you. But a phase of your life is finished. You can no longer hug the past as if it was a security blanket. Take a cold plunge into the future!

GEMINI (May 21-June 19):

Strive for independence. Impress your own style. Your ambitions will be defined. Your sense of direction improves. But a legal agreement may not hold water.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

You learn who has been pulling strings — and in which direction and for what purpose. Be calm, cool about discovery. Stay out of traffic. You tend now to become "Entangled." Steer clear, also, of arguments with relatives. One in particular has violent temper — and could lose control.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Your ability to ask without asking, to know without knowing — this comes surging to the fore. Gemini, Sagittarius could be involved. Money picture is confused. Don't hang on to obvious, losing proposition. Refuse to permit pride to cost and cost.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

All that appeared sweetness and light could now be thunder and lightning. You could be trapped. Key is to extricate yourself with least amount of damage as possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

Not wise now to mix friendship and cash. You could lose both — know it and respond accordingly. Be gracious but don't get involved in scheme. You appear to be target for "sob story." Money flow is blocked — promises won't pay bills.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

Your creative talents will be utilized — but now is not time to insist. Study Capricorn message for valid hint.

It is best now to listen and observe. You will get green light for expansion program after red tape is cleared.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are artistic, versatile, have sense of comedy and you often eat too much of the wrong foods. Thus, it is likely that you have weight problem. You are going through period of emotional turmoil but you will land on your feet. If single, marriage is upcoming. January and October are your key months this year. Gemini, Sagittarius persons may important roles in your life.

'Cosmo' Image Doesn't Hold In the Big City

(Last May, a story about New York bachelors was distributed by The New York Times News Service. The article, which concluded that things aren't always hunky-dory for single men in the Big Apple, was based on interviews with 12 typical New York bachelors, and it drew dozens of letters from single women who thought their sides should be told, too. Their general consensus: things aren't so hunky-dory in New York for single women, either.)

By JUDY KLEMESRUD

NEW YORK (NYT) — She is young, she is single, she is a New Yorker. And she is usually pictured in one of two ways: as a swinging, sexy "Cosmo" girl, dressed to the nines and ready for a night out on the town with the man she hopes to eventually snare; or as a hard-driving career woman in aviator glasses who has little, or no, time for men.

One or the other. Black and white. No grays.

Both ways of life definitely exist in New York, and both have their adherents. But according to a dozen young unmarried New York women who were picked at random to talk about their lives and their views of New York men, the "swinging life" is too superficial, and the career-oriented life is too lonely.

Somewhere in between, there is bliss, they say. Now, if only they could meet some men.

Almost to a woman, those questioned said they had strong feelings that there were vastly more eligible single women than men in New York, even though census statistics show that the odds are in a woman's favor in every borough except Manhattan, where there are 225,013 single women, according to statistics, and only 3,128 fewer single men.

"Oh, the men are out there — somewhere," said Brenda Workman, a financial house organ editor in her early 30's. "But because so many people are isolated in their jobs in this city, you have to take aggressive efforts to meet them."

She has placed ads about herself in a dating magazine called The Black Book, and in the last decade has gone out with more than 300 men as a result. She has met an additional 35 men through computer dating.

Although she has had 13 "mostly uninteresting" marriage proposals and strongly wants to get married and have children, Workman said she was somewhat reluctant to do so because of a "fear of divorce."

This fear was one area where most of the 12 women agreed. They also had several other things in common, including a loathing of singles' bars as a place to meet men, a belief that New York men are wary of getting involved in "relationships," and contempt of the so-called "one-night stands."

In last May's article, the 12 bachelors also said they liked down on singles' bars as places to meet women, and that they found that women were reluctant to get involved in relationships. The men expressed distress, however, at their observation that more and more women they meet are interested in "one-night stands."

Some areas where the women differed were whether they would consider having children without being married (5 said yes, 7 said no), whether they should offer to pay their share of an evening (8 said yes, 4 said no), and whether they should call men for dates (7 said yes, 5 said no).

Dr. Sandra Raff, a 27-year-old internist at Bellevue Hospital, said she had no qualms about calling men she has dated when they haven't called her.

NANCY BELL EVANS, wife of Washington State Governor Dan Evans, is a former music teacher who considers herself the shy one in the family, protective of her family's privacy. She says "it is only natural that a woman, a wife, wants to get back to a more normal existence."

Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

Dear Dr. Miller: Pansy has beautiful kittens and a good pedigree. The problem is she gets so terribly skinny when nursing kittens. I wonder how early I can begin to wean them safely? — R.F.

Dear R.F.: At almost any age you can begin to offer them synthetic milk replacer, though they'll probably prefer the real thing. They'll be most willing to accept the substitute when they're hungry, of course. Between three and four weeks of age, they should be well aware of the baby food type formulas, then gradually on to increasingly more solid food.

Dear Dr. Miller: When I bought Caruso three months ago, he wasn't singing but I was told canaries don't sing until they get adjusted to their new surroundings. Well, I've been waiting. I figured, too, that he might not be singing because his legs and feet were sore — they were scaly. I've been treating them with some mite medicine. I know his legs had mites because I had a parakeet once that had mites on its legs and they were all scaly like that too. So far in three months, I haven't solved anything. His legs are still scaly even though I treated them religiously, and he's not singing. I wonder if he's not used to me yet, or if he's not singing because his legs are still sore. I haven't treated them lately. They don't look so sore — just scaly. As far as I'm concerned up to now, Caruso's a dud. But he's a likeable little bird, and I'm willing to give him time. What do you think? — O.G.

Dear O.G.: Could be Caruso's clock's running down. Time may be just what you can't give him and what he really needs. The most common cause of scaly-skinned legs and feet in a canary is not mites, but old age. If the trill is gone because Caruso's past his prime, patience won't help much.

Dear Dr. Miller: Both Bimbo, our 9-year-old, and Deuce who's only 5 months, weigh only 20 pounds. Bimbo's never been a skimpier eater but he's always looked good. I measured and found that Deuce was eating over twice as much as Bimbo, but in the last week Bimbo's trying to keep up with him. Will this hurt him? Is it reasonable for a puppy to eat that much more, or should Bimbo be eating more than he was? — N.K.

Dear N.K.: It's normal for a rapidly growing puppy to consume well over twice as

By FRED KARPIN

Just how important the opening lead can be becomes evident when one examines today's deal, which came up in a team-of-four match. When the deal was played the first time, the opening lead enabled declarer to fulfill his game contract. When the deal was replayed subsequently, the same game contract was reached via the identical bidding sequence, but a different opening lead resulted in a five-trick set.

Mounties 'Disciplined Automatons' Wilson Wins

By ANDRE OUIMET

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — Recent arrests and dismissals of RCMP veterans are only the "tip of the iceberg," and more can be expected in the near future because of a basic flaw in police training, a government source admitted Thursday.

The training over-emphasizes discipline at the expense of personal judgment, he explained.

The RCMP was so concerned about its public image for so many years that it created disciplined robots without bothering to do anything about their brains," he claimed.

Thus the RCMP ended up with a number of well-disciplined automatons who gradually lost all personal judgment and simply could not cope when faced with a moral dilemma outside their day-to-day duties.

One top-level officer once boasted that he could order a constable to jump out a third-floor window and be certain the order would be instantly obeyed, and that was his conception of how the force

Officers had been brainwashed to such an extent that they were incapable of thinking — clearly — for themselves whenever they began to question their role in society and it was not surprising that they could indulge in criminal activity since they had lost all sense of right and wrong.

Closely associated with the force for a number of years, he claimed that recent standards were predictable over three years ago.

Robert Samson, a nine-year

veteran of the RCMP, was arrested last summer in connection with the bombing of a grocery store executive's home in Montreal and an inquiry into the incident established underworld connections between Samson and some of his friends.

More recently, an RCMP constable was arrested on Montreal's South Shore while apparently filling an RCMP truck with stolen merchandise in a St. Hubert lumberyard.

Fake licence plates had been affixed to the RCMP truck, but no charges have yet been laid pending the results of an investigation.

And there was an uproar here when two RCMP veterans who had been summarily dismissed decided not to protest their firing because doing so would have apparently opened a can of worms contrary to the public interest.

There was little hope of reform at the moment, the source continued, because the current solicitor-general, Warren Allmand, spent most of his energies on prison reform leaving the force "pretty well on its own."

U.S. Coal Strike 'Forced'

WASHINGTON — The president of the United Mine Workers charged Thursday that his union is being forced toward a U.S.-wide strike five weeks from now by the refusal of the industry to bargain in good faith.

Unless the industry backs off from its present stance, UMW president Arnold Miller said at a press conference, "I must reluctantly report to the American people that a nationwide coal strike is likely to occur on Nov. 12."

He accused the industry of wanting to force a strike, "then demand, governmental intervention" to undermine the union's bargaining power.

HATFIELD NAMES DAY AMID ROSY OMENS

FREDERICTON (CP) — Hard on the heels of two Progressive Conservative by-election victories, Premier Richard Hatfield today called a New Brunswick election for Monday, Nov. 18.

The premier's announcement comes nearly four years after his Conservative government won office by defeating the former administration of Premier Louis J. Robichaud.

The economic situation appears likely to be the major issue in the campaign.

Groves said Plumper Bay Sawmill has only 25 employees making chips instead of 150 at full production and Sooke Forest Products which had employed 375, has its graveyard shift off and the work force down to 250 "and that could be cut back at the end of the month."

Victoria Plywood vice-president C. C. Meares said he doesn't know how long the mill will be closed.

"Right now, the industry picture doesn't look good until spring," he said.

He blamed the closure on a poor market for plywood, adding the situation has been aggravated by United States plywood makers flooding the Canadian market with low-priced goods.

Groves also referred to "cheap plywood coming in from the U.S. which just compounds the thing."

B.C. Forest Products in Victoria laid off 79 of its plywood workers in September to reduce production.

"Roy Whittle, vice-president, said the current Victoria sawmill layoff, together with 20 at Youtou and 51 on the mainland, brings the total to date for the company to 236."

He said lumber markets are continuing to deteriorate to a point at which market prices are well below cost of manufacture and with the mills sustaining heavy financial losses "these further curtailments cannot be avoided."

Alternative employment will be offered where available "but this is limited because of the current situation affecting the forest industry as a whole."

Industry layoffs in B.C. are close to 12,000 and the TWA said just over a quarter of its 115,000 members in Canada and the United States have been laid off.

He was commenting on reports from Washington that the White House proposes that the U.S. retaliate against livestock and livestock products shipments from Canada because of a continuing quota that affects U.S. cattle and beef exports.

The question was raised in the Commons by Jack Murta (PC-Lisgar). He said the threat of retaliation by the U.S. government posed a very serious problem for this country. He said Canadian officials have known of these impending developments for about one month.

The concern was prompted by Washington's decision to launch retaliatory action to the export restrictions which Canada had imposed against American cattle.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the House that the Canadian government will take a "serious view" of any such retaliatory trade restraints by the United States.

The question was raised in the Commons by Jack Murta (PC-Lisgar). He said the threat of retaliation by the U.S. government posed a very serious problem for this country. He said Canadian officials have known of these impending developments for about one month.

The concern was prompted by Washington's decision to launch retaliatory action to the export restrictions which Canada had imposed against American cattle.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the House that the Canadian government will take a "serious view" of any such retaliatory trade restraints by the United States.

Elderly To Audit Classes

Senior citizens will be eligible to sit in on University of Victoria courses next year for free, UVic officials have decided.

A special classification for the student "listener" also allows any person under the age of 60 to audit classes on payment of a $20 registration fee.

Dr. M. J. Ashwood-Smith, who headed a special senate committee which made the recommendation, said Thursday any individual who receives permission from the department or division concerned, may register next year.

Listeners may participate in a maximum six courses, but will not receive credit for any work undertaken.

An extra $20 will be charged, he said, if the course involves laboratory facilities.

N.I.P. Plan All-Inclusive

Prepaid Tax Incentive Up

To encourage more property owners to take advantage of its property tax prepayment plan, the city of Victoria is jacking up the interest rate offered by two per cent.

For years, residents have been able to pay up to 90 per cent of their property tax bill — due June 30 — during the period between Jan. 1 and April 30.

The advance payment applied against the bill accrued interest, but for a number of years the interest rate has remained static at six per cent, and city officials believe inflationary-minded taxpayers have been finding the plan less and less attractive.

This year, for example, the city collected $340,000 in advance payments up to the end of April, whereas the figure last year was more than $1 million.

A bylaw given first readings at the city council meeting Thursday will raise the interest rate from six to eight per cent.

Schools Complaint Probed

An officer of the B.C. Labor Relations Board is in town today to investigate a complaint by the Greater Victoria School Board about its maintenance staff.

The school board has charged members of Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees with limiting services by refusing to service evening activities in the schools.

The officer will report to the labor board upon completing his investigation.

Today 38 school custodians and janitors have booked off sick, compared with an average of sick of 12. Eleven maintenance workers have also called in sick.

School custodians last month began refusing to open doors for evening activities in the schools, as a protest against failure of the school board to "rate" the schools to equalize workloads.

The school board says it is now rating the schools and has promised CUPE the rating will be completed by Oct. 31.

However, a CUPE spokesman said Thursday the rating must be settled by Oct. 25 or the union will refuse to discuss the servicing of school rentals and night

Much to the relief of community associations in James Bay and Victoria West, city council Thursday designated those entire areas as neighborhood improvement areas eligible for $2 million in federal N.I.P. funding.

The city's original intention was to select and concentrate on certain districts within the two neighborhood areas, mainly to avoid spreading the available cash too thinly and to ensure the best possible improvements.

This argument was based on the assumption that areas not tackled under the current program might well qualify in future years.

But the community associations strongly opposed the selective spending approach, pointing out that under N.I.P. rules, unless the entire areas were designated, many residents would be denied the loans and grants provided for rehabilitation of older homes.

James Bay N.I.P. coordinator Kay Lines said today every indication points to stringent federal economies ahead, which might well cut the N.I.P. program or at least deny Victoria another opportunity.

"We all felt we should get the money while we can," she added.

The associations' suggested lists of priorities under the program are included in a detailed report which the planning department is preparing for city council.

Faculty Funds Screened

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

University of Victoria Faculty Club directors are under special scrutiny from provincial government auditors because of "inadequate accounting procedures."

Club director Bill Pfaffenberger said today he received a reprimand from the province's controller of general account for "the absence of adequate control of general."

The letter said auditors were "unable to express an opinion on the finances of the club" and further review will continue.

Pfaffenberger said there had been no change in accounting procedures during the last six years.

He said the department was "questioning the accounting procedures, not the figures in the books" and problems arose this year only because "the department sent a different person than has normally audited the books."

He said the directors had been asked by club members if there was any money not reported in the statements, and the only thing we didn't put down was $1,500 gratuity donated by members individually to the staff at Christmas.

"It wasn't revenue or an expense so we didn't list it."

Because the club is listed as a society under the B.C. Societies' Act, it is eligible for auditing by the province, he said.

All members of the club, which has a budget of $104,900 this year, will receive a report on the matter when further information is provided by the provincial auditors.

Pfaffenberger predicted the club will probably have to change its accounting procedures and "if the department actually insists we might have to start a duplication billing system" to satisfy the department.

Members have been designated to check their own accounts, he said.

The bank manager argues that his is the only building in the block "prejudicially discriminated against in this manner," and says the result of a "test run" agreed a year ago with city and transit authorities is totally unsatisfactory.

The "trial" period is over and the situation remains unkept, obstructive, a denial of ethical privilege and prejudicial to business," he says in his request for remedial action.

But Baines' reference to a test period today had both Hood and city traffic engineer Dave Campbell puzzled. Neither was aware of any such agreement, although Hood noted he wasn't chairman of the traffic committee a year ago.

Hood said the only practical long-term solution may lie in the provincial government's promised overhaul of the city transportation system, which might relieve some of the congestion at the Douglas-Yates site.

Campbell said he could think of no other more suitable location for a main bus stop and downtown transfer point.

Group Planned to Smooth Stroke Victims' Recovery

An organizational meeting will be held later this month to launch a society victims.

Like the Open Heart Society which originated in Victoria, it will aim at smoothing the road to recovery.

Mrs. Corinne Tench, 1288 Camrose Cres., said today the meeting will be held at the YM-YWCA Oct. 25 at 7:30 p.m. and people, particularly stroke victims, who are ready to help are welcome.

Mrs. Tench, 42, is former head nurse of the coronary care unit at Victoria General Hospital. Almost two years ago she suffered an attack which left her completely paralysed.

Since then she has recovered use of her left side and can walk a little with a leg brace.

Zap: Ailments Found With Gamma Camera

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Royal Jubilee Hospital has added a $118,000 gamma camera to the weaponry it uses in probing for trouble, and depending on what you feel a life is worth, it's already paid for itself.

The camera, which has just gone into use after some teething problems, produces moving or still pictures of blood flow through brain, heart, lungs, liver, spleen, kidneys or placenta by recording the passage of minute quantities of radioactive material injected into the bloodstream of a patient.

It's a painless and swift procedure, linked to a futuristic data system housing a computer and alive with lighted switches, spinning tape and a TV monitor which will replay flow studies in slow motion, stop the action, measure flow and vary intensity of the image.

The camera operates from the basement of the Richmond Pavilion where the hospital's department of nuclear medicine is located.

Dr. A. G. Richards, head of the service, said Thursday it was used recently on a man who had been in an accident and complained of a slight headache and a little double vision.

A brain scan quickly and clearly revealed a blood clot and an operation which saved the man's life was under way within hours.

The flow studies give useful information which can't be gathered any other way, Richards said. The camera, which can also take skeletal pictures, will reveal bone cancer, for example, long before it appears on any x-ray picture.

When a skeletal picture is sought, the injection is a minute quantity of radioactive phosphorus which bodily functions naturally draw to the site of the bone problem. On the TV screen, the trouble spot glows like a beacon.

In fact, the gamma camera technique relies on the body's organs doing what comes naturally. The liver and spleen, for example, screen any foreign material from the bloodstream and so gather up the injected material, letting the camera measure the gamma rays it emits and make a picture.

Salon Keeps Big Wheels Beautiful

By LIZA BERCOVICI

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (NYT) — What Sassoon is to hair, what Elizabeth Arden is to faces, Ken Young is to cars.

Young "operates The Pyramid, The beauty salon for cars" he calls it, just two blocks outside Beverly Hills' city limits.

Young rarely charges less than $65 for his five-hour beauty treatment. Depending on the work involved, he may charge a customer $150, sometimes more.

In Beverly Hills, the automobile is a pre-eminent status symbol. Burt Sugarman, the rock-producer, for instance, plunks down $275 for Young's special beauty treatment for any one of his 18 cars, including his expensive Duesenberg and the Rolls.

Just 18 months ago, Young emerged on the local car-cleaning scene. Only a year ago, he had no assistants and was cleaning just three or four cars a day. But today, thanks to some helpful publicity and show business friends, 300 customers roll in faster than Young and his four-man crew can wax, polish, glaze, shampoo and vacuum.

"Boy, what a madhouse," he murmured as a customer drove up in a gold Cadillac to leave for the treatment.

The idea blossomed when Young, who worked for an educational management firm, saw a car cleaner at work in a garage used by executives of Motown Records, where Young's wife was working as a stenographer.

"I saw there was a tremendous amount of money that could be made of a first-class car operation," he explained, adding that he set about to learn the business, first practicing on his own white 67 Oldsmobile, then joining a Hollywood Ferrari dealership, and finally opening his own car-cleaning operation in Glendale.

In 10 months, the business failed. "It was the wrong location, I got only dealership cars, new unused cars," he said, not the beauties of the Hollywood jet set.

But, reopening in Beverly Hills, he began luring the city's celebrities to his establishment: Jerry Lewis, the Comedian ('71 Bentley), Sammy Davis, Jr., the singer ('70 Maserati), Rona Barrett, the columnist ('72 Rolls), Paul Williams, the composer ('71 Mercedes), and Dean Martin, the singer ('73 Rolls, '74 Jaguar, '72 Jaguar).

Following the elaborate cleaning, "the car comes out smooth as glass and clear as the noon-day sun," says Young in describing the treatment.

First the car is washed, then "cut" — or machine-buffed — to remove the dirt, grime and oxidation that exposure to photochemical smog produces on California cars. Then the pores of the paint are resealed and the car is waxed with a special kind of $245-a-case wax, Young says.

"No names, it's my trade secret," Young says of his wax. Then the wax is removed by hand, the car is glazed by machine, and the car is cleaned of swirl marks by a special swirl-removing machine.

The white walls are cleaned — blackened — the carpets are shampooed and the chrome is polished. The leather upholstery is dressed with a soft cream paste, from Rolls Royce.

"It gives your leather a nice sheen and also preserves expensive leather," said Young. A toothbrush is used to remove wax from the cracks and crevices of the car. The TV set, the phone, the refrigerator and the bar — accessories that these cars are likely to have — are cleaned. When the beauty treatment is over, the car seems immaculate from the tailpipe to the front grille.

Young is prepared to handle any make of car, but few Vws, Chevys or Pintos find their way to his garage. Four out of every five cars cleaned are Rolls, with Mercedes, Jaguars and Cadillacs, in that order, accounting for most of the others.

CHANGING PUBLIC VIEW SPEEDING UP EQUALITY

OTTAWA (CP) —

Changing public attitudes are speeding progress towards full equality for women, members of the federal advisory council on the status of women told a news conference at the end of a three-day meeting here.

As recently as four years ago, many women were antagonistic to the women's movement, said Joan Wallace, the council's Vancouver representative.

Today, these same women were beginning to "embrace changes to put them on equal footing with men in all sectors of society," she added. But many still shied away from the blanket term "women's liberation."

This perhaps resulted from the poor image of the women's movement created by the news media. It had tended to focus on militant factions and ignore "middle of the road" groups such as the status of women council.

Coverage of women's issues had improved but much material still was relegated to daytime women's programs on television or the "women's" pages of newspapers. It should be treated as general news, members of the council said.

Men also are adopting a more concerned, favorable stance on equality for women, said Dr. Katie Cooke, council chairman. They now were joining women in complaining to the council when they spotted instances of discrimination against females.

Cooke also said after the news conference that she thinks the federal government is moving at a "good pace" in its efforts to end practices and legislation which discriminate on the basis of sex.

The House of Commons' quick reintroduction of legislation to amend eight federal statutes containing discriminatory measures was an example of the government's good intentions.

The proposed legislation — which would effect changes in the Canada Elections Act, the Criminal Code, the Immigration Act, the Public Service Employment Act, the Pension Act, the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act, the National Defence Act and the Unemployment Insurance Act — died on the order paper when Parliament was dissolved last May. It was reintroduced in the Commons Tuesday.

"But we have to keep up the pressure," Cooke added.

Free Gift Offers Often Cost More

By LYNNE GORDON

There are so many ways you can be "painted" with supposed free gift offers.

Have you ever received a mimeographed letter in the mail that says, "Congratulations! Your entry form has just been drawn for a second prize." Not only are you eligible for a prize, the letter says, but you also receive a check for $80, to buy some merchandise.

It looks alright, but look closer, the "check" is really just a merchandise voucher and in fine print you find only a credit to be applied towards merchandise. If you read more carefully, you'll also find that it only applies to specified merchandise in the shop and they may be selling stereos or sewing machines. And if you still fall for the come-on, when you get in the store, you'll find, first of all, the free gift is a package of sewing needles or an old record.

Now, try to use your "pseudo-check".

The special machine you can buy with that $80 probably costs about $130 and even with the $80 off, you are getting stung. If you had taken time to comparison shop, you probably could have bought the same machine in another store for $50 without a voucher.

But the salesman really isn't interested in having you buy the machine with the voucher.

Once he has you in the store, he'll try to switch you to higher priced merchandise. He'll give you a line that the "special" merchandise is too cheap for someone with your taste. It will, probably fall apart, after too much use and he convinces you to switch to a more expensive model.

The best thing you could have done in that case, is never to have gone to the store at all.

This is just one form of the free gift schemes. You may get another card slipped in your mailbox or under your door saying, "Congratulations. The holder of this certificate and enclosed gift ticket is entitled to receive one of the following items." Usually there are about six items on the list.

When you call the number on the card, that will be the first time you hear a company's name. And it may be a freezer or television company. That's when you should hang up.

If you STILL think you can get a free gift, you are headed for trouble. Once you let the salesman in your home, expect to get a grueling couple of hours of selling.

By the time he works you over, you'll have bought merchandise you never wanted, probably at an inflated price. Or if you resist, and don't buy, you'll find you have to go to some distant spot to pick up the free gift. Now, if you ever decide to take the time to get that free gift it will probably be out of stock or you may be directed to an empty field.

Analyst Rates Ford's Program Disappointing

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic program is more notable for its omissions than the ten points the President ticked off to "put our ... economic house in order."

For all the talk about the need to cut energy consumption, the President not only ducked the politically-sensitive issue of gasoline taxes, but shied away from mandatory conservation measures in favor of the same old batch of voluntary suggestions.

To raise revenues, the president failed to ask Congress to pug some of the outrageous loopholes that favor special interests, but proposed to sock a 5 per cent tax surcharge on middle and upper income groups.

Thus, people who have been paying their fair share of taxes all along are asked to pay even more. That's not the right approach so long as the whole tax system is distorted by loopholes.

Moreover, there is considerable justification for the quickie judgment of a labor leader like Jerry Wurf, who says it looks as if Ford would tax the middle-class so as to provide a hefty investment credit for corporations.

The most serious omission of all is the absence of any plan to deal vigorously and directly with the key economic problem of the moment, the festering wage-price spiral.

As Ford surely must know, labor leaders who kept wage demands at a moderate level for a year or more, can no longer do so because of a ragging price inflation.

The explosion in the cost of living, creating a double-digit pattern that will probably last into 1975, will force a new wage-price spiral unless something is done about it.

Yet, President Ford not only failed to equip his new Council on Wage and Price Stability with real powers or with suggested wage-price guidelines — he didn't even ask business and labor not to raise prices and wages to unconscionable levels.

The president apparently followed the advice of those like former Treasury Secretary George Shultz, who warned Ford at the summit meetings not to tinker in this area.

"This program," said the current secretary of the treasury, William Simon, "is aimed at minimizing government controls." So for the time being, ideology has won out again, and the public will suffer with high inflation rates. How long will the public be patient?

Having rejected the help of direct action in restraining wages and prices, the president could not take stimulative action to get the country moving out of recession. At least, the policy is consistent: Ford offers no dramatic initiatives against either the inflationary or the recessionary side, which means that the nation will continue to suffer from "stagflation."

The cost of this deficiency can be seen not only in the weak program of tax relief to the poor (most was already in the works via the House Ways and Means Committee), but in a pallid version of the Jacob Javits-Arthur Burns public service jobs proposals.

Is the Ford program a complete bust? I think not. The president at least recognized

Freighter Robbed

Three young men are suspected of stealing more than $1,500 worth of goods of a Liberian freighter loading grain at Ogden Point Tuesday.

Victoria police said the three — described as in their early 20's blonde and wearing jeans — were asked to come aboard the MV Ogden Importer for "a look around."

The crew invited them aboard but after the trio left, discovered three $500 walkie-talkies were missing from the bridge area and some vitamins, drugs and syringes taken from the ship's hospital.

A seaman also reported five bottles of whisky had been stolen from his cabin.

No Extension On Grants

Deadline for B.C. Cultural Fund grant applications will not likely be extended past Oct. 15 despite a request from the Arts Access committee which claimed it was not informed of the deadline.

Committee members sent a telegram to the provincial secretary Tuesday protesting that their group wasn't notified.

Every community arts council and every group which applied for money last year were informed, a department official said today, and this is the usual procedure.

the complexity of the inflation-recession problem, one of the lessons of the summit. He laid stress on expanding new energy sources, and warned Detroit that it must produce more efficient cars.

He properly demanded a beefed-up anti-trust law, and paid lip service to doing away with Prof. Hendrick Houthakker's "sacred cows" that gouge consumers through antiquated Government regulations.

During the summit sessions, Economic Council Chairman Alan Greenspan, who pulls no punches in his economic analysis, said the economy would suffer higher unemployment and a no-growth pattern for a year. He warned that it would take up to three years to subdue inflation.

Former Economic Council chairman Walter Heller and his associate, George Perry, speak in the Minneapolis National City Bank letter of a 1974-75 "policy-induced recession" (that) will be the longest and most costly one we have suffered since the Great Depression."

BASEBALL BOOTS CFL OFF SCREEN

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC television network announced Thursday it will delay the broadcast of Saturday's Canadian Football League game in Ottawa in favor of showing the first game of baseball's world series.

The Ottawa CFL game, with Winnipeg Blue Bombers visiting the Rough Riders, is scheduled for 11 a.m. PDT and would be over about 1:30 p.m.

The CBC had considered

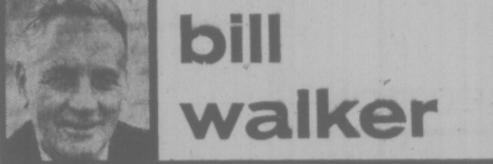

cancelling the football telecast but decided Thursday that it will be broadcast on a delayed basis beginning at 8:40 p.m., PDT Saturday.

The baseball game begins at 1 p.m. PDT.

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, said the decision to give American baseball priority over Canadian football was indefensible and added that the baseball game would be shown on American NBC channels available in most major Canadian cities.

The Numbers Game: Let's Get Mystical

Well, I see where Jack Scott, when he wins his packet, is off on a world cruise or, if not the full gamut, a trip to anywhere and back on a slow, slow freighter.

It isn't any secret that almost everyone else would like to say "me, too." And why the heck not, it might just happen.

People will try anything to get a windfall. And now governments are getting in on the gravy and making sweepstakes of all kinds fair game even if they can't agree why some are officially legal and others not.

However, who cares, especially if the money is there? And because people are basically superstitious to a certain extent, maybe that's the bag of tricks that should be explored in search of a winner. It takes no longer than dreaming of that moonlight cruise through the Caribbean to learn of some of the science of numerology, today's numbers game.

But, first, remember, this is not to be construed as an invitation to gamble, or to invest in a sweep ticket of any sort. Heavens, no! Now for the figure's fiblets.

It can be recalled that racing at Sandown was a part of the local scene, one way to beat the horses was to stay at home, another was to bet the system. And in one case the system worked, right from the first flagfall to the final finish. And one happy duo, who would prefer not to be identified, once hit it for plenty.

Their method was ridiculously simple. They had charted previous Sandown meets and found that No. 2 was the post position which produced most horses in the money and more winners, too. So basing their system on No. 2, and picking their spots — Bingo! It worked — beautifully. Of course, at Sandown, it was easier, because at the tail end of the season there often wasn't a full field, the fewer starters the better the odds, and on a bull-track the inside horse, if it has any speed at all, has the edge; and if they didn't exactly win a retirement fund, they had ample spending money for the winter.

From the Mysterious Past

Not true numerology? Well, maybe not. But people do believe in special numbers — their marriage licence, age, phone number, house address, car licence, the cute little number at the office — and how often have they used that system to pick out a ticket. Almost always.

Then of course, there are the mystical numbers from ages past. Maybe they will make you a winner or at least a believer.

For example:

THREE — THREE cheers — faith, hope and charity, the three graces . . . third time lucky.

FIVE — The five fingers on each hand . . . the five toes on each foot . . . the five senses of man, sight, hearing, taste, smell, touch . . .

SEVEN — This has to be the most popular of all myste- eals . . . the game of dice . . . seven come 11, seven days of the week . . . seven wonders of the world . . . the seven colors of the rainbow . . . and "seventh heaven" . . . wherever that is?

Or how about TWELVE — The hours on a clock . . . the months in a year . . . the 12 apostles . . . the 12 signs of the Zodiac . . . does it have some special power?

TWENTY-ONE — This has its favorites, too . . . the coming of age (sorry all 19-year-olds) . . . a 21-gun salute . . . and if you multiply 3x7, guess what you get?

Anyhow, sometimes it all works.

So Who Needs Skill?

There was that great grandmother in Britain who really put it together for a $130,000 packet in Vernons Soccer Pools. You know how? She used the ages of her four children, nine grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren for the 18 selections on her perm. Oh yes, she was 73, which is double lucky anyway!

Then there was another fellow who picked his selections from a taz roulette wheel, filled in the coupon and received a cheque for around $300,000.

Yet another big winner, $280,000 worth, used passing train numbers as his system.

Simply put, then, the easy way is to use all the mystical numbers possible, your own private picks, and rely on the skill of some mathematical wizard who knows how to read a racing form but doesn't know how to apply it and, if he did, the boy up would probably fall off in the stretch.

So now you get the idea, Jack.

And hey! Maybe next time we could use some of that numerology stuff, group together any two of five lines of five, perm any eight from 10 at eight goes a penny, and get the whole entry for only 56 cents.

Perhaps we could pop the pools that way. If we did, then we'd be in that "seventh heaven."

See you on shipboard, mate.

Sinden's Goaltending Gets Nixons on Board

Roy Sinden came up with a solid display in goal and Larry Hansen scored two goals to help spark Victoria Nixons to their first victory in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League Thursday.

Nixons defeated Esquimalt 6-4 at the Sports Centre.

Hockey Jets' Loan Delayed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's civic executive policy committee Thursday refused to approve the agreement negotiated between the city and Winnipeg Jets hockey club and wants changes made before the club backers receive the $300,000 loan the city has promised.

MESSAGE FOR MIKE

is delivered by Philadelphia defenceman Andre Dupont (6) as he jolts Los Angeles winger Mike Corrigan away from puck during first period of National Hockey League game in Philadelphia. Corrigan didn't take hint and was back few minutes later to score goal for Kings, who went on to post 5-3 upset victory over Flyers.

Ginnell's Hopes High Because of Early Jump

"I might sound optimistic," says Victoria Cougar coach Pat Ginnell, "but I'd like to think we can come off this road trip with a .500 performance."

Cougars open a strenuous week in Canada Hockey League jaunt in Calgary tonight. It's the first of 40 games the Cats have to play in 15 days.

There's a reason why Ginnell feels the Cougars can win half of the games. It's timing.

By scheduling the tour well in advance of the league's roster-reducing deadline, the Cougar coach can count on the services of 21 players.

"The extra man may come in handy," suggests Ginnell. "It gives us depth in case of injuries. Nobody is in mid-season form at this time, and

By ANDRE OUIMET

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — Recent arrests and dismissals of RCMP veterans are only the "tip of the iceberg," and more can be expected in the near future because of a basic flaw in police training, a government source admitted Thursday.

The training over-emphasized discipline at the expense of personal judgment, he explained.

"The RCMP was so concerned about its public image for so many years that it created disciplined robots without bothering to do anything about their brains," he claimed.

Thus the RCMP ended up with a number of well-disciplined automatons who gradually lost all personal judgment and simply could not cope when faced with a moral dilemma outside their day-to-day duties.

"One top-level officer once boasted that he could order a constable to jump out a third-floor window and be certain the order would be instantly obeyed, and that was his conception of how the force

Officers had been brainwashed to such an extent that they were incapable of thinking clearly for themselves whenever they began to question their role in society and it was not surprising that they could indulge in criminal activity since they had lost all sense of right and wrong.

Closely associated with the force for a number of years, he claimed that recent scandals were predictable over three years ago.

Robert Samson, a nine-year

veteran of the RCMP, was arrested last summer in connection with the bombing of a grocery store executive's home in Montreal and an inquiry into the incident established underworld connections between Samson and some of his friends.

More recently, an RCMP constable was arrested on Montreal's South Shore while apparently filling an RCMP truck with stolen merchandise in a St. Hubert lumber yard.

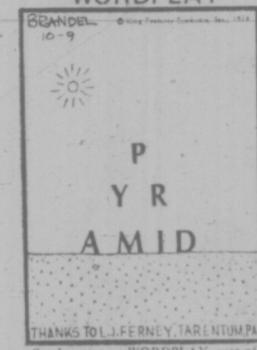

Fake licence plates had been affixed to the RCMP truck, but no charges have yet been laid pending the results of an investigation.

And there was an uproar here when two RCMP veterans who had been summarily dismissed decided not to protest their firing because doing so would have apparently opened a can of worms contrary to the public interest.

There was little hope of reform at the moment, the source continued, because the current solicitor-general, Warren Allmand, spent most of his energies on prison reform leaving the force "pretty well on its own."

U.S. Coal Strike 'Forced'

WASHINGTON — The president of the United Mine Workers charged Thursday that his union is being forced toward a U.S.-wide strike five weeks from now by the refusal of the industry to bargain in good faith.

Unless the industry backs off from its present stance, UMW president Arnold Miller said at a press conference, "I must reluctantly report to the American people that a nationwide coal strike is likely to occur on Nov. 12."

Labor Won't Accept Curbs: CLC

Times-News Services

MONTREAL — A conference of high-ranking economists, government, business, and trade leaders was told Thursday that Canadian workers would not restrain wage demands in 1975 merely because of "world-wide concern over inflation."

The statement was made by Canadian Labor Congress president Joe Morris who added that labor had fallen far behind other groups in real worth of "take-home pay."

As if to underscore his point, 1,000 newspaper workers in Northwestern Ontario today struck over demands for pay increases in the 60 per cent bracket. The company had offered hikes in the 40 per cent range.

Labor's determination to match wage increases to rises in consumer prices would impose added strains on industrial relations, he said.

"I am under no illusion that in the next year trade unions will not come under attack, perhaps greater than ever before, because of a serious inflationary situation, one indeed of world-wide proportion," he told about 700 delegates attending a one-day meeting of the Conference Board in Canada.

"Organized and non-organized workers have lagged behind, while others have prospered," he said.

"If we have been guilty of anything, it has been our slowness to respond to this situation."

Morris also warned that labor would not be part of any proposals for improving the collective bargaining process if it took away the right to strike. Violence and anarchy have resulted in countries where the right to strike was outlawed, and the same could happen if that tough approach were to be taken in Canada, he warned.

Morris' tough words provided a contrast to 19 other speakers who appeared to agree that Canada's high-inflation economy can't get much worse, but may even get better or else remain the same in the next six to 12 months.

HATFIELD NAMES DAY AMID ROSY OMENS

FREDERICTON (CP) — Hard on the heels of two Progressive Conservative by-election victories, Premier Richard Hatfield today called a New Brunswick election for Monday, Nov. 18.

The premier's announcement comes nearly four years after his Conservative government won office by defeating the former administration of Premier Louis J. Robichaud.

The economic situation appears likely to be the major issue in the campaign.

Groves said Plummer Bay Sawmill has only 25 employees making chips instead of 150 at full production and Sooke Forest Products which had employed 375, has its graveyard shift off and the work force down to 250 "and that could be cut back at the end of the month."

Victoria Plywood vice-president C. C. Mearns said he doesn't know how long the mill will be closed.

"Right now the industry picture doesn't look good until spring," he said.

He blamed the closure on a poor market for plywood, adding the situation has been aggravated by United States plywood makers flooding the Canadian market with low-priced goods.

Groves also referred to "cheap plywood coming in from the U.S. which just compounds the thing."

B.C. Forest Products in Victoria laid off 79 of its plywood workers in September to reduce production.

Roy Whittle vice-president, said the current Victoria plywood mill layoff, together with 20 at Youbou and 51 on the mainland, brings the total to date for the company to 336.

He said lumber markets are continuing to deteriorate to a point at which market prices are well below cost of manufacture and with the mills sustaining heavy financial losses "these further curtailments cannot be avoided."

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the House that the Canadian government will take a "serious view" of any such retaliatory trade restraints by the United States.

He wanted to know what discussions Canada had had other than the discussion which Agriculture Minister George-Whelan had with U.S. authorities in Boise, Idaho.

"Very intensive consultations have been already held with the Americans on the necessity of our establishing these quotas to protect the Canadian market," MacEachen said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Code Proclaimed

B.C.'s new Human Rights Code will formally become law by proclamation of cabinet. Labor Minister Bill King announced today the outstanding provisions of the code prohibiting discrimination on the basis of marital status, political beliefs and criminal convictions, and strengthening previous human rights protections will now be in effect in the province.

U.S. Prime Rate Cut

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank, the second largest in the U.S., lowered its prime lending rate 11/2 per cent today, indicating a slight easing in the tight monetary policy imposed to curb inflation.

comments Monday by Prentiss Barrett that chartered banks charge huge interest rates on loans, and reapurious profits. The premier, on a two-week public relations tour of the province, added that it was time the bank had some competition.

May said that in view of the federal government's intention to change the bank act to permit provincial governments to own up to 25 per cent of the shares of a bank, the government and B.C. Central will probably meet soon to discuss the specifics of setting up a merchant bank.
